GEORGIA'S DAY

Minor Appointments Distributed Freely Over the State Yesterday.

BEN RUSSELL IS ON THE WAR PATH.

He Will Not Rest Until He Gets the Republicans Out.

MR. CLEVELAND PREFERS YOUNG MEN.

Congressman Livingston Keeps Calling at the Departments in the Interest of Washington, June 26 .- (Special.)-Representative Ben Russell, of the second district, is here to stay anywhere from two weeks to a month. "Long enough," said he today, "to turn every republican postmaster out in my district.' He is certainly on the war path. He started in today against B. F. Brimberry, at Albany. He filed charges weighty with offenses committed by Brimberry. Postmaster General Bissell, moreover, promised to take them up at once and appoint a successor. Mr. Bissell has recommended Captain Rust. He will call tomorrow and prefer charges against the postmaster at Thomasville, Cathbert and Dawson, the only other presidential offices in his district. After that, he will take a whack at the

Mr. Dial Desires More Salary. The first foreign appointment was offer ed South Carolina today, and, strange to say, it will be refused. N. B. Dial, a conservative, was tendered Zurich by Mr. Quincy. The office pays $2,000, and very little fees. Mr. Dial has it under considera tion to give his answer fomorrow. Mr. Dial said tonight that he would decline it. 'Zurich is a nice place to have fun in but not to live in with a family on $2,000, he said. He hopes, however, to secure a better post when he tells Mr. Quincy of the family. Mr. Dial is endorsed by both senators, but not by Governor Tillman.

Old Men Need Not Apply. Major J. Johnathan Lucas, of Darling ton county, South Carolina, has come out for the collectorship. He is well endorsed, but is over fifty years old, which will ex-clude him. Mr. Cleveland wants young men, and that no old ones need apply is an understood ruling of his. It is understood that Ben Perry will not be given the collectorship, but will get the chief deputy's place, no matter who is appointed as first man. The Constitution's correspondent has it straight that a man who is not yet on the list of entries will be offered the post, with Mr. Perry as his deputy.

Two Georgians Draw Prizes. M. F. Quinan wants to be inspector of ustoms for Georgia. He made application oday. Ben R. Armstrong, of Savannah, has filed an application to be made superintendent of construction of the new building

J. B. Sparks, of Atlanta, was today messenger in the treasury. David Robinson, of Savannah, landed to-day as inspector of immigrants. His appointment was secured through Congress for Reforming the Tariff—He Makes Several

EDWARD ATKINSON'S PLAN

For Reforming the Tariff—He Makes Several Propositions.

Boston, June 26.—Edward Atkinson has made public his plan for the reform of the tariff. The task is one to be undertaken, he says, as soon as the monetary question can be settled. In dealing with the reduction of the tariff, regard must be given, he says, first to making such adequate additions to the free list as may do away with the present sadvantages under our domestic manufactures and mechanic arts have so long suffered in the relative cost of their material; 1 red in the relative cost of their material; 1 ad second, to establish such lesser rates of duty on finished products of voluntary use as to increase rather than diminish

As to the time required to bring about the reform, Mr. Atkinson says that demands to congress may make it necessary to defer for some months any great change that might imperil the present revenue. In the list of 1895 the obligations for pensions will fall off about one-third or one-quarter. It would, therefore, be desirable that any change on the existing system of collecting evenue should be deferred until the last part of 1894. In the meantime the probable excess of revenue under the existing saws will make it safe to abate duties, on all imported crude and raw materials at a cry early date in the year 1894. It may be assumed that the present congress may not take final action upon a well devised and consistent tariff act before January 1, 804. This act may put wool, dyestuffs, res, crude or so-called raw materials, in the free list, this change to take effect in the early part of the year 1894. There hould be an interval of at least six months effore the reduction of duties in finished goods takes effect, order to give the consumers fraw materials an opportunity to work of existing stuffs without disaster. That would bring the revenue tariff into complete effect in the latter part of the year 1894. If congress, at the coming session, would empower the secretary of the treasurey to liquidate the first payments allowed on pension claims by the issue of pension notes bearing a low rate of interest, payable on the call of the treasury, the only uncertain element of revenue to prospective expenditures ment of revenue to prospective expenditures ment of revenue to prospective expenditures could then be made in a more simple and effective manner. This would create a merely temporary loan, subject to the payment at the will of the treasury. Such ment at the will of the treasury. Such notes would correspond to the exchequer bills which are issued by the British treasury and to the frequent borrowings of our own cities and towns in anticipation of taxes assessed but not paid in. There is another very simple way of bridging over this interval that would give absolute assurance of an abundant if not a surplus revenue. In the last fiscal year the consumption of the last used year the consumption of beer amounted to nearly 32,000,000 barrels of thirty-one gallons each on which the present tax is $1 a barrel, less 5 per cent discount when stamps are bought in large quantities. If this discount were not given, the gain in revenue would be about $1,500,-000 a year.

the gain in revenue would be about $1,500,000 a year.

The first payment of pensions should be made about June, 1894, in order to cover a possibility of a reduction of customs revenues in the transition period. The tax on beer is costly and the collection is safe from invasion, and even at double the present rate it would be no appreciable burden on the consumers. rate it would be no appreciable burden on the consumers. The present tax does not exceed 4 per cent on a half pint of beer; when retailed at 5 cents a glass, about one-fifth of a cent a glass. If the tax were doubled it would not exceed 8 per cent, or less than a half cent on each pint of beer. The additional revenue would be from $30.000.000 to $35.000.000 in 1894. The additional revenue would be 000,000 to $35,000,000 in 1894.

He was a butcher His life had been tangled with that of the Rechrl family for a long time. His wife was in Europe until a few months before the tragedy, and during her absence Fitzhumes had naintained illicit relations with Reehrl. He was about thirty-four years old, she a great deal older—about fifty-two. She left her husband for a time to two. She left her husband for a time to live with Fitzhumes, it was testified at the trial, and there had been quarrels between him and Reehrl. Finally Fitzhumes sent for his wife to come over from Germany. The money for her passage came from Mr. Reerhl. Fitzhumes and his wife went to housekeeping. ousekeeping.

She and her fernily were living in a couple of rooms and the proposed that Fitzhumes and his family should come and occupy one room, while she and her people took the other. On the night of April 7th, Fitzhumes went to the door between the two rooms and opened it, standing in the doorway or just behind it, making some very choice remarks about Mrs. Rechrl. Her husband and son were at supper. Young Reeral stood up for his mother's honor and told Fitzhumes to leave the room. Fitzhumes rushed back into the corner and told Fitzhumes to leave the room. Fitzhumes rushed back into the corner of his room, seized a big knife he had been using to cut meats and then ran back into Rechtl's room. There he grappled with young Rechtl and drove the knife through his heart. Fitzhumes was found guilty of murder in the first degree and Judge Titus sentenced him to death.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Particulars of the Sinking of the Warship Victoria Off the Syrian Coast.

WHILE GOING THROUGH MANEUVERS

Admiral Markham Was Slow in Obeying the Command,

AND THE DELAY CAUSED THE DISASTER.

The Victoria, After Being Strack, Made for the Shore-After a Few Miles' Run She Suddenly Keeled Over.

New York, June 26 .- An extra edition of The Evening World, issued this evening, contains a special cable from Tripoli, Syria, giving an account of the sinking of the Victoria, as follows:

At about 3 o'clock last Thursday afternoon the English fleet came in sight of El Mina, the port and town of Tripoli. It was coming from the northeast and making directly for the harbor. The five big iron-clads-Victoria, Camperdown, Edinburgh, Nile and Sans Pariel were drawn up in full front. The Victoria was in the center, the Camperdown was on her left and the Edinburgh on her right. When they were in five miles of shore Vice Admiral Sir George Tryon signalled to turn and form in double line. In this action the Camperdown and Victoria were to go ahead a little and describe a turn-the Victoria turning to the left and fhe Camperdown to the right-then they would advance side by side in the direction from which they had come and the others would swing into double column order and advance two and two behind the leaders. When the order was given the distance be tween the ships was less than two cable lengths. The execution of the order was easy enough for ships further away from the center, but extremely difficult for the Victoria and the Camperdown. In turning the boats would pass in a few fathoms of each other. Even this movement was executed with the greatest precision. This movement is rarely made, and it is for the purpose of training the ship commanders to move expeditionsly away from shooling waters. Whether because Admiral Markham, of the Camperdown, could not believe this movement was to be tried when the ships were so close together, or because he thought Admiral Tryon had miscalculated the distance, he did not set about executing Admiral Tryon's order, but signaled that he did not understand it. The Victoria and the other vessels had not

The Delay Was Fatal.

The Victoria began to turn at once, as she still held to the signal. The Camper-down no longer hesitated, but also began down no longer hesitated, but also began to turn. The brief delay, however, had been fatal. The Victoria had nearly turned and the Camperdown, winging around, bore down upon her. Both admirals were quick to act. Admiral Tryon swing the Victoria so as to receive at the smallest angle the blow which both officers saw was inevitable, and Admiral Markham did the same for the Camperdown, besides reversing her screws. The ram of the Camperdown struck the hull of the Victoria just in front of the armored bulkhead, and plunged into the thin plates of her starboard side. The armor ends at the bulkhead and the forward part of the Victoria above the water line was but cardboard to the mighty iron wedge. There was a smashing of wood and iron plates, and the ram and sight four of the how of the Camperdown. and eight reet of the bow of the Camper-down crashed twenty feet into the bowels of the Victoria. The Camperdown was hafted by the heavy armor of the Victoria, and as her screws were reversed she at once began to back away. As all the other ressels were moving to get into double line behind the two leaders, they were bearing down upon the ships, and a catastrophe involing all the ironclads was imminent. Only the coolness and prompt action of the other commanders prevented a gen-eral disaster. The Victoria's bow was now pointed full towards the shore. It seemed that Admiral Tryon did not realize the extent of the damage to the Victoria.

Straight for the Shore. As no accident of this kind had happened before he could not know what the effect would be. He no doubt thought as that only one apartment was damaged, the others would keep his ship affoat. So when the Camperdown and others signaled offers of boats he replied that he did not need them. The Victoria began to forge straight for shore under full steam. It is one of the rules of the British navy that if any ship is in danger of sinking and the shore ship is in danger of sinking and the shore is not far away she must go into shallow water so that if she goes down she may be raised again. So Admiral Tryon was making for the shore and was widening the distance between the Victoria and the other ships.

When the Camperdown's ram struck the Victoria Admiral Tryon, the navigating officer, two signal officers and the men at the wheel were all upon the bridge, either in full view or in the charthouse. Most of the crew was in the forward deck lounging in full view or in the charthouse. Most of the crew was in the forward deck lounging about trying to keep cool under the blaz-ing sun of the clear, calm day. With the ing sun of the clear, calm day. With the crash they rushed into the battery and as far aft as possible, but when the two battleships separated all returned to their places. The discipline was perfect. The admiral and officers remained steadfast upon the bridge, setting an example. So good was the discipline that within five minutes after the blow a diving suit had been brought on deck and a diver was getting into it to obey an order to go below and find out the extent of the damage. The getting of the vessel had taken some little time.

About ten minutes after the strike, the over on the starboard and with a roll and a plunge buried her bow below the calm surface of the sea.

It Was Almost Instantaneous. There was only a chance for a few wild cries and the Victoria was almost half submerged, her revolving screws whirling clear of the water and high in the air. Those on deck were plunged into the water. The men forward and below had no time to rush, but found themselves groping for doors in apartments filled with water. There was a little more time for those in the

was a little more time for those in the officers' quarters. They heard the shouts and warning cries and rushed to the almost perpendicular deck.

Commander Jellico, lying in his boat sick with fever, started up and dashed to the deck to find himself inmediately struggling in the water. A lieutenant swam up to him, put his arms around him and, despite the handicap of supporting the helpless man, was able to get away from the side of the sinking ship. It took a strong, skillful swimmer in full possession of his senses to do this.

were hurled into the water fully dressed had to battle against increased suction. A moment and new peril more horrible descended upon them. Deep in the hull and descended upon them. Deep in the huit and enclosed in the water-tight apartments was enclosed many twin screws which, as the vessel sank came whiring nearer and nearer to those in the water. The poor creatures battled in vain against the suction thus created. They were drawn down against the swift blades.

That Terrible Whirl. Then came the scene of horror on the decks of the other war ships. Screams and shrieks arose and in the white foam appeared reddened arms and legs and torn bodies. Headless trunks were tossed out of the vortex to linger a moment on the surface and sink out of sight. All within that vortex lost their presence of mind. Men who knew how to swim ceased swimning and fought with the water. Men clutched each other in frenzy. The deep cone of whirling water with the swift knives chopping human bodes at the bot-tom of it, was a horror to dannt the bravest. A man who escaped says that the bravest. A man who escaped says that the vortex caused at least fifty deaths. The moment the knives disappeared and the vortex began to close up. The ship was beneath the surface just as the whirl was swallowed almost to the surface.

Scalded to Death.

Then there was a mufiled sound of thunder; the waters were tossed up and a steam cloud burst forth from them. Again the shrieks and screams burst from the swimmers. The boilers had exploded, and the swimmers were beating waves of scaldthe swimmers were beating waves of scalding water. Thus, in less than ten minutes, death of three awful forms struck the officers and the crew of the Victoria—death by scalding water, death by drowning and death by knife-like screws.

The Camperdown steamed away from the other ships, and came sailing over the sea to save the struggling mea. Its boats were soon picking up the fortunate ones who had got out of reach of the terrible vortex. So long as the vortex lasted, the boats did not venture near. It is though that more than half of those drowned got out of the ship, but were caught in the vartex or scalded to death by the boiling water.

Admiral Tryon stuck on the bridge, and refused to leave it. Just before the Victoria made her underplunge, he saw what was about to happen, and issued an order for each man to save himself, but the order never got beyond the bridge, for ruin descended straightway. The diver whom he had ordered below to look into the damage was still on deck and dressed for his descent, excent his below: He whom he had ordered below to look into the damage was still on deck and dressed for his descent, except his helmet. He would have been dragged to the bottom by his heavy lead-soled shees, had it not heen for a segment who stopped to cut by his heavy lead-soled shoes, had it not been for a seaman who stopped to cut him loose from his heavy clothes. The diver was saved, but the man who cut him free was drowned. There were many acts of such heroism. The peril of those in the water was increased by the fact that the sea was infested with sharks.

It is the duty of marines when a collision occurs to immediately go below and close all the watertight compartments. When the Camperdown struck the Victoria, the Victoria's marines went below for their duty, and, as a result, out of 120 marines on the Victoria, hinety-nine were lost.

ANARCHISTS PARDONED.

Governor Altgeld Issues Pardons to Fielding, Nebel and Schwab.

Springfield, Ill., June 26,—Governor Altgeld today issued pardons to Samuel Fielding. Oscar Nebel and Michael Schwab, the anar-Oscar Nebel and Michael Schwab, the anarchists now serving terms at Joliet penttentiary for alleged complicity in the Haymarket riot in Chicago on the night of May 4, 1886. The pardon message contains 17,000 words: The governor takes the ground that these men did not have a fair trial and that the court was prejudiced. He scores Judge Gary and Chief of Police Bontfield severely. Regarding Governor Altgeld's pardon of Fileding, Nebel and Schwab, Captain Black, who was the leading counsel for the defense in the anarchist trial, said today: "This pardon will not weaken the law, but will strengthen it, and will increase the respect for the law in the minds of the people."

Frank Walker, one of the state's counsel in the case, said: "The only effect the pardon might have might be to lessen the fear of punishment in the minds of men like them But then, fanatics never how fear."

The Men Released.

The Men Released.

Three men, who for nerly six years have been known as Nos. $3.76, $5.26, and $8.27, emerged from the penitetitary at Jollet at 7 o'clock this evening. They were Oscar Nieb, Samuel Fielding and Michel Schwab, the anarchists who were paroned by Governor Altgeld today. When Banker Dreyer, of Chicago, arrived from springfield with the precious papers, the men were brought into the warden's office and Ar. Dreyer made a short speech in which he said executive clemancy was extended to them on condition that they promised foretermore to refrain from associating with mes who preached the doctrines which brought them within the prison, and to refrain from again propagating anarchist theories. The men could hardly promise fast enough and is a short time they were on the train bound for this city. The men, on advice of Mr. Dryce, left the train at Twenty-third street and took exteet cars to their homes to avoid any possible demonstration by their friends at the depot.

Mrs. Fielding refused to go to the train to meet her husband, saying that she did not believe the news. The Men Released.

ORDER BEER BY THE NUMBER.

In South Carolina the Brews Will Not Be Known by Their Names.

Columbia, S. C., June 23.—(Special.)—Things are beginning to hum at the state dispensary and the governor's heart is being gladdened by the first flicker of the booze business. Orders from Newberry, Abbeville, Edgelield and Camden for all sorts of drinks were received today and the shipping clerk was kept busy. The attorney general has rendered an opinion to the effect that a county dispensary can, in lieu of the ordinaty bond, give a bond of indemnity written by guarantee companies, provided such companies have compiled with the state law. There are no companies of this class that have compled with these laws. Several employes were laid off today because of the fact that all the fliquor on hand has been bottled. Six different kinds of beer will be furnished by the dispensary, and they are to be known by numbers only. The names of these beers however have been secured. They are as follows:

No. 1—Moerlein; No. 2—Anheuser-Bush; No. 3—Augusta Brewing Company; No. 4—Palmetto Brewing Company, Charleston; No. 5—Crescent Company, Aurora, Ill.; No. 6—Pabst.

LUCKY HE DIDN'T TALK LONGER. Macon and Northern Bonds Are Put on Good Basis by the Circuit Justice. Some Adroit Side Thrusts.

Savannah, Ga., June 26 .- (Special.)-The fight over the remains of the Central railroad began this morning in earnest. The courtroom was crowded long before the time for court to assemble, and during the entire proceedings standing room was hard

There was much speculation at the opening of the proceedings as to what order was to be pursued, but Justice Jackson soon settled this by asking the attorneys if they were ready to proceed with the case of Alexander Brown & Sons and Simon Borg & Co., the especial point mentioned being the validity of the Central's endorsement on the bonds of the Macon and Northern, the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus and the Savannah and Western. Justice Jackson's queries and decisions

Justice Jackson's queries and decisions on points all through the case indicated the bent of his mind, and it was no surprise when he decided that this $10,500,000 debt of the Central was valid.

The lawyers present were: Messrs. H. C. Cunningham, A. R. Lawton, Jr., S. B. Adams, N. J. Hammond and B. A. Denmark, for the Central. Sitting near by, a little to the left of the bench, were the attorneys for Alexander Brown & Sons. They were Messrs. Calhoun, King & Spalding, of Atlanta, and H. J. Bowdoin, of Baltimore.

Clarke, were seated in the center of the courtroom.

Among others present were: Senator Butler, of South Carolina, and Leopold Wallack, of New York, who are associated with Calhoun, King & Spalding in representing the Macon and Northern, the Savannah and Western, and the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus bonds; Louis F. Garrard, of Columbus, who represents the trustees of the Mobile and Girard first mortgage; Judge Henry Tompkins, of Atlanta, and A. S. Joline, of New York, who represent the Central Trust company, of New York; Julian T. Davies, of New York, representing the stockholders under the tripartite mortgage of the Mobile and Girard, the Monfgomery and Eufaula and the Ocean Steamship Company; Henry G. Crawford, the Terminal's chief attorney, and Captain Harry Jackson, of Atlanta, W. G. Charlton and W. W. Mackall, who are associated with them; Colonel George A. Mercer, who is associated with H. B. Turner, of New York, representing the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, which is endeavoring to foreclose the tripartite mortgage. Colonel Clifford Anderson, of Girard, and Receiver Comer. Mr. Erwin Demurs.

Today's discussion first came up on the validity of the Central's endorsement on the Macon and Northern, the Cincinnati, Rome and Columbus and the Savannah and Western boads. Marion Erwin, counsel for Mrs. Rowena Clarke, the original complainant, announced that he had a demurrer to the ball of Brown & Sons', and began argument on it. He held that the Macon and Northern was entirely liable for the mortgage upon it. The contract under which the Macon and Northern was leased and the bonds guaranteed was a joint one, Mr. Erwin argued, and was contrary to public policy, ultra vires and void. It was a joint lease, he said, one party having as much power as another to control the property, but, legally, neither had the right to make it. Mr. Erwin admitted, however, that the Central might have made it separately. He read the guarantee on the contract, and cited several supreme court decisions which he thought were on parallel cases. The Central company had, he said, given up the road for ninety-nine years, and it was under the control of the Richmond and Danville at the time the lease was made. The Danville had made the lease entirely for its own benefit, and had put the joint guarantee of itself and the Central upon it. Mr. Erwin Demurs, own benefit, and had put the joint guarantee of itself and the Central upon it. Justice Jackson ruled that Mr. Erwin's citations were not applicable, as they referred only to accommodation guarantors in cases where the guarantors were not

m cases where the guarantors were not parties to the lease.

Mr. Erwin contended that the Central had no right, under its charter, to endorse these bonds and make itself liable for a debt of $2,200,000. debt of $2,200,000.

"The Georgia Central, in making its lease, did not lose its corporate powers of existence and organization, did it?" asked Justice Jackson.

A Twe Edged Argumen

Mr. Erwin admitted that it did not and Justice Jackson then showed that the Central had the power to lease the Macon and Northen under its charter. The question was then narrowed down to the validity of the Central's endorsement on the bonds. Mr. Erwin argued that the endorsement was valid as the charter of the Central's ity of the Central's endorsement on the bonds. Mr. Erwin argued that the endorsement was valid as the charter of the Central prohibited it from contracting a debt of more than three times its capital stock. The debt was increased beyond that amount June 30. 1888, and he thought that invalidated all debts made since that date. Justice Jackson said that put the court in an embarrassing position, as debts had been created under its orders. Mr. Erwin admitted the administration by the court was not bound by the charter. Mr. Erwin thought the right of the Central to hold a majority of the stock in any road was questioned in the case of the Port Royal and Augusta railroad, in which Judge Pardee recently rendered a derzion.

Justice Jackson corrected him.

"Judge Pardee's decision was just this," the circuit justice remarked. "He said there was no necessity for this court to take charge of the road simply because the Central owned the majority of the stock."

The Central Will Be Sold.

Just before Mr. Erwin closed his argument Justice Jackson made a statement that clearly indicated the policy of the and explained the transactions in regard to the Macon and Northern and the Chatta-nooga, Rome and Columbus bonds. Mr. Calhoun said he thought the law was so clearly on his side that he would not bothelearly on his side that he would not bother the court with citation of decisions. In order to sell these bonds the Central had put its guarantee upon them. The Macon and Northern bonds had been endorsed in consideration of a lease to the Central which it had a perfect right to make. The Central had been paid for the difference in the number of new bonds issued and old bonds of the Macon and Northern, which, of course, had to be replaced by the new.

Nearly a Million a Minute.

Nearly a Million a Minute. The power of the Central to make its lease had been uncontradicted and its provisions had been extremely broad. In a fourteen minutes' speech Mr. Calhoun had saddled upon the Central a debt of $10,500,000, as shown by Justice Jackson's decision.

"Gentlemen," said Justice Jackson, "I overrule the demurrer. The Central is bound on the guarantee for those bonds. The plea of ultra vires does not cover the case nor does any decision quoted. We hold that the Central is liable on all these guarantees."

antees."

The justice then asked what was the next point to be taken up. Mr. R. B. Turner, representing the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, thought the foreclosure suit should come next. Mr. C. N. West, for the stockholder, John S. Tilney, denied the jurisdiction of the court to entertain this case on the ground that it was not a dependent bill under the Rowena Clarke case. Justice Jackson overruled his point and said that inasmuch as the property was in possession of the court the bill was in-dependent and the court had jurisdiction to entertain the same. There was some discussion between A. O. Bacon for the Southwestern and A. H. Joline, representing the Central Trust Company. Major Bacon has filed a cross bill for the Southwestern to the bill of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company for the foreclosure of the $4,999,000 tripartite bonds, denying the liability of the Southwestern on that indebteuness, while the Central Trust Company holds it is hable. The Southwestern's Liabilities.

Justice Jackson then told Mr. Joline and Mr. Bacon to meet and agree as to the facts and then present the questions of law tomorrow morning, when it will be decided whether or not the Southwestern is liable for the tripartite mortgage or not. The impression seems to be that the court will so hold it, and that the Southwestern will so hold it, and that the Southwestern may be sold first and then the Central for the balance of the debt. After this question is disposed of, the suit for the foreclosure of the tripartite mortgage will be taken up and the road will probably be ordered sold, at least such is the indication, indiging from the action and determination. judging from the action and determination of the court. If, however, for any reason the the court. It, however, for any reason the hearing of the foreclosure suit is postponed, the question of the removal of the receiver and the appointment of a new receiver will, or course, come up. Everybear is of the opinion that the court will order the road soid after a brief bearing and there will be no necessity for the consideration of the question as to the removal of the receiver as the court has determined upon a speady sale whenever a sale has been defispelly seed whenever a sale has been derived the mittely decided upon and ordered.

The attorneys have all gone down to Tybee for the night and will return in time for the hearing at 10 o'clock a. m. tomorrow. The impression is that the court will wind up the litigation by Wednesday, as a decision with ragard to the sale of the property will settle the rights of the majority of the litigants who have intervened.

Another Attempt to Rob a Passenger Train

In Indian Territory.

Denison, Tex., June 26.—Another attempt was made to hold up the Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train No. 3 at Stringtown, I. T., Saturday night, this being three attempts during last week, all of which were unsuccessful. Suspicious parties were seen lurking in the vicinity during the day. The fact was reported and No. 3 was given orders not to stop at Stringtown under any circumstances. A gang was waiting 100 yards south of the depot, and seeing the train rush by fired twenty shots at it. Several took effect in the smoker and chair car, but no one was injured. The train, guarded by ten men, who got off some distance below, returned to the depot and arrested several negroes. The opinion prevails that the gang is after the Indian money which is expected here. in Indian Territory.

Raleigh, N. C., June 26.—(Special.)—A special tonight says that by order of a coroner's jury the remains of Mrs. George Green were disinterred in Pamilco county. It was found she had been horribly beaten on the face and head. Her husband had refused to permit any one to view the body before the burial. It was also found that her husband had choked her to death, as filinger prints on her throat showed. Upon the finding by the jury that Green had murdered her, a posse started after him. On reaching bis home it vas found he had blown out his brains with a shotgun.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

The Reorganization Committee Cannot Raise Enough

TO CARRY THE SCHEME THROUGH.

Central's Affairs Are Again Chaotic-Mr. Comer and the Directors Are Disappointed-What Will Happen.

Savannah, Ga., June 26.-(Special.)-

The Hollins plan for the reorganizing of the Central railroad has exploded.

There is no hope for the holders of junior securities on that line. The Hollins com-pany notified Mr. Comer today that there is no longer any hope for the plan.

It is understood here that this decision has been reached on the idea that there is so much opposition to their scheme by out-siders and insiders that they are glad to give it up. But the real reason appears to be that the tight money market makes it impossible for the party to carry out its proposition. The truth is there is no other reason to be assigned. This grand property is to be disintegrated during hard times, and holders of its junior guarantees are to part with their holdings in hard times for just what they will bring. Whether this was intended or not cannot be told, but there is no doubt of the fact that Hollins & Co. have notified Mr. Comer, the receiver, that they have surrendered their plan of reorganiza-tion. What this means the next few days

The breaking up of the Hollins plan was one of the objects of all this litigation which has been piled on the Central in the last three months. This plan was put out by a committee, of which H. B. Hollins, of New York, was the head. Various opinions were enter-tained in regard to it. Some said it was the others opposed it vigorously.

The Macon and Northern bondholders, who were left out, kicked, and Justice Jackson's decision today declaring the Central's guarantee of those bonds valid, was probably the last straw to break the plan's back.

What the junior security holders will get now is a question. Nobody can tell anything with certainty until Justice Jackson decides about selling the property. The failure of the plan is a great disappointment to Mr. Comer, who sincerely believed it was the best way out of the difficulties. This plan proposed an issue of new bonds and preferred and common stock and in the total the Richmond Terminal's present majority block would become a minority.

The failure of the plan has been predicted all along by a few parties, but the general impression was that it would succeed.

A SENSATION IN COURT.

Savannah, Ga., June 26,-(Special.)-The Savannan, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—The lawyers engaged in the Central litigation had scarcely assembled in the United States courtroom in the big granite custom house building when somebody received a telegram stating that The Constitution had a special about Dr. Westmoreland's affidavit.

The news spread, and there was a livel

The news spread, and there was a lively sensation. Several of the attorneys had heard such a report, it seems, but this took them by surprise. Nobody who was interested would ta'k until more could be heard of the nature of the publication.

This afternoon's Press tells the story, and it was read with interest.

Some declared that they did not believe any such affidavit is in existence. Mr. Henry Crawford would not state whether he has it or not, but one of the lawyers in the case says that Crawford certainly has an affidavit from an Atlanta doctor to the effect that Dan Rountree told him that Judge Speer inspired the suit. It seems that the affidavit does not go so far as The Constitution's New York correspondent was led to believe.

Constitution's New York correspondent was led to believe.

Mr. Crawford says he is down here at tending to legal business, and it is not his place to discuss such matters, and wanted to know why the reporters had not sought their information from the man who had signed the affidavit.

Mr. Rountree said it made no difference what Dr. Willis Westmoreland said, the report was absolutely false. He said he and Dr. Westmoreland were very good friends at one time, but had fallen out over a lawsuit, and he supposed that was the milk in the cocoanut.

Judge Speer at first refused to be interviewed, as in his position he did not like to make any statement. He would only say that, so far as he was concerned, there was absolutely no truth in the statement. Others are of a like opinion.

SEVERAL KNEW OF IT. Dr. Westmoreland Read It to the Central's Lawyers and Fut Them on Notice.

A publication in The Constitution yester-day of the existence of Dr. Willis West-moreland's affidavit created a rattling sen-sation over the state.

Lawyers and railroad men were par-sation over the state.

Lawyers and railroad men were particularly interested in it, and discussed it in every phase. Dr. Westmoreland is so well known that an affidavit which he would give in this connection would attract attention. He would not say a thing about its existence, and would neither affirm or deny The Constitution's New York special.

That he did give Henry Crawford an affidavit to the effect that Dan Rountree told him that Judge Emory Speer inspired the litigation, there is no doubt.

Judge Speer knew of it at the time, And so did Mr. Rountree and others.

"I am free to say that I went up to the courtroom on the last Saturday Mr. Justice Jackson was in Atlanta, expecting to hear that affidavit read. I expect a dozen lawyers, at least, knew of it then, but they got it confidentially.

"There was a dramatic episode the night before in the Kimball house. Dr. Westmoreland took a stenographer and went to a room where there were several lawyers of the Central's side and read them his affidavit, and put them on notice of what he intended to do with it: that is, that he was going to give it to Henry Crawford, Dan Rountree was there, and so were Messrs. Patterson, A. O. Bacon, Aler Lawton, I think, and others. He wanted to read it to Judge Speer, but I do not think the judge came to the room. Some of the party asked the doctor not to give the paper to Crawford. He was cool, and told them plainly what he was going to do. Judge Speer knew of it that night. But, you remember, he was not perturbed the next day in court."

Another lawyer said to a Constitution reporter: "Didn't I tell you on Saturday afternoon that these was a big sensition which had not come to light, but which I could not mention then? Well, the little matter to which I referse.

BIBB COUNTY IS RATHER DRY.

Hard to Find a Point Outside of Macon Which Is Three Miles from a Church or a Schoolhouse.

Macon, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—A party in Macon today from Jefferson county makes the very interesting statement that Hon. R. L. Gamble will probably resign the superior court judgeship of the Louiscircuit, and will move to Atlanta to live. My informant did not say that this was absolutely true, but ideclares that it is generally rumored. I believe Judge Gamble was elected by the legislature of 1890, and, while he may serve his term out, it is thought that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Judge Gamble is a fine lawyer and a speaker of eloquence and power, and Atlanta would furnish a broader and better field for the display and employment of his talents that Louis-ville possesses. Judge Gamble has made ville possesses. Judge Gamble has made a splendid record on the bench, and is popular with the people.

In the event of Judge Gamble's resignation or declination to stand for re-election, it is not improbable that Hon. Aleck Daly, of Wrightsväle, will be a candidate for the judgeship. Mr. Daly is one of the ablest lawyers in the circuit, and possesses the esteem of all who know him. Mr. Daly has represented his district in the senate.

Three-Mile Liquor Law.

Since the passage of the three-mile liquor law by the legislature, all barrooms and sale of liquor in Bibb county outside of the city limits of Macon have been discontinued, as all places at which liquor was sold were within three miles of a church or schoolhouse. But, after persistent effort, it is thought that a place has been found in Bibb that is more than three miles from a church or schoolhouse, and Mr. Dan Lucas expects to try and locate a bar there. The situation is near what is known as the Brunswick bridge, over the Ocmulgee river, and over which the East Tennessee railroad track runs. There are but few people living about the point East Tennessee railroad track runs. There are but few people living about the point where Mr. Lucas wishes to locate the bar, but he hopes to catch the custom of the many people who travel by foot over the bridge, and, moreover, since navigation has been reopened on the Ocmulgee, it is proposed to establish a landing near the bridge and boats will bring excursions to the place, and Lucas hopes thereby to reap a harvest. But, before Lucas can establish a bar at the Brunswick bridge, he will have to obtain the consent of the ten nearest neighbors, five of whom must be free-holders. Some doubt if the Brunswick bridge is more than three miles from a church or schoolhouse. It may be, for the bridge is down in a swamp.

What the Contract 1s. What the Contract Is.

The Macon Gaslight and Water Company has a contract with the mayor and council of Macon to furnish the city water for a period of twenty years. That contract is now in operation, but many of the people of Macon say they desire the contract broken, and a lawsuit has been threatened by them, but the sayid kingston properly. by them; but, to avoid litigation, unending litigation perhaps, the mayor and council have been requested to give notice to the Macon Gaslight and Water Company that Macon Gaslight and Water Company that at the expiration of one year the city intends to buy the waterworks at an arbitrated price. There has been considerable inquiry to know exactly what the law says about the matter. In 1892, a bill was introduced in the legislature and passed, from which the following extract is taken, which expfains itself:

"There shall be embodied in said contract the privilege to the mayor and council to purchase the system of waterworks used

On failure of said parties to agree, the price to be fixed by disinterested arbitrators, two to be selected by each party and three to be chosen by those so selected, and the decision of said arbitrators, as to the price to be paid, shall be final. The contract shall further provide that, before said purchase shall be made, the said mayor and council shall give notice in writing to the said water company one year in advance of its intention to purchase said waterworks: and, before said purchase waterworks: and, before said purchase shall be made, the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of the city of Macon shall be obtained in the manner now or which may hereafter be provided by law to the incurring of the indebtedness for the purchase of said waterworks."

Thus it will be seen that before the mayor and council can purchase the waterworks.

No Pay Yet.

This is June 26th, and the employes of the Central railroad at Macon have not yet been paid their wages for May. The average man can't understand why pay-ment is thus delayed. It was the same ment is thus delayed. It was the same thing in May as regards April wages. The management of the Central road says pas-senger travel is better than it has ever been. The increase is considerable over the same period last year. Freight busi-ness is better. The read extends no credit ness is better. The read extends no credit to its patrons. A passenger can't ride a mile without paying in advance, nor can he get any freight without paying charges before delivery. What is becoming of all the money that the road is dafly making? None is being paid on claims, judgments, etc., and supplies are not being paid for, and wages are sharing the same fate. Employes should be paid their wages promptly. The road is certainly earning operating expenses, but operating expenses are not being paid regularly.

A Tramp Arrested Who Evidently Has a Bad

Record.

Athens, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—A special from Danielsville says: What seems to be a bad character is under arrest here. He took in the town yesterday morning and departed after arousing suspicion and frightening several people. He gave his name as John Gross. At night he was discovered in the woods, and J. S. McCurdy and Mr. Rice found him in a deep guily by his campfire. When McCurdy jumped in the gully Gross rose for battle, but Rice following brought with him several panels of old fence, which tumbling in in the darkness caused Gross to imagine that the woods were full of enemies. He leveled his pistol on McCurdy, but it being rusty, he could not fire. He broke for liberty. The fire from McCurdy and it to him for the gullet. The fire from McCurdy was in the act of sending another bullet. Gross's foot caught in a vine, throwing him to the ground. Gross was armed with two thirty-eight, center-fire five shooters and a razor. He had sewn up in his vest $115.94. He says he has more money. He had an excess fare ticket of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baitimore Railway Company, No. 91.728, punched at Baitimore. He says he got into a fight in Washington, and three men were killed, but does not say he killed them. Gross talks but little and not much can be gotten out of him. He admits that he has served in the chaingang in Washington. When arrested he said he had rather die than go to jail. He is evidently a bad man and is doubtless wanted somewhere for crime. He is now in jail here. He says his father is to blame for his troubles because he did not raise him right. Gross states that if he had known only two men were after him they would not have arrested him, but the noise of Rice and the fence tumbling in the gully made him think a whole company was on him.

Wayeross, Ga., June 26 .- (Special.)-Jack Booth died here this morning, about 9:30 o'clock, from the effects of a dose of morphine taken last night between 9 and 10 o'clock. From what those who were with him yesterday say, it is evident that it was his intention to put an end to his troubles. Booth was born in Tattnall county thirty-three years ago, and most of his life was spent in Savannah, Blackshear, Smithville and Waycross. He traveled all over Georgia and Alabama teaching band music. While teaching a band in Huntsville, Ala., about four years ago, he got into a difficulty while playing billiards. During the fight he was hit on the head with a billiard ball. This affected his mind, and he was never considered bright after-

Saturday he was arraigned before the mayor for disorderly conduct, and was fined $35 and costs. The fine was just, but Booth thought otherwise. He could not pay it, and, doubtless, he saw the chaingang staring him in the face, and he preferred death. Waycross, Ga., June 28.-(Special.)-Jim Courney, the negro who killed Jake Smith, another negro, at Broganza. April 2d, was sentenced by Judge Sweat today to be hanged on July 28th. Courney's case first came up in the superior court and he was sentenced to the superior court and he was sentenced to hang on May 20th. He asked for a new trial and it was refused. His counsel, who worked hard to save his life, then took the case to the supreme court, which decided that the decision of the superior court was just. The, prisoner was perfectly composed when sentence was passed upon him. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him, he said that he hoped the court would allow him all the time possible so that he could prepare himself. Drs. G. P. Folks and J. M. Spener were appointed to attend the execution and

STOPPED THE WRONG MAN.

A Farmer Who Was Halted by a Negro Fires Griffin, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—A report of a sensational murder at Shoal creek, about eight miles from Griffin, has just reached the city. On Saturday last a large number of negroes assembled at Shoal creek for a picnic, and as usual a good deal of drunkenness and quarreling went on. Mr. W. C. Patton, a white farmer, was passing by the prace on his way home from Griffin. When near the grounds he was stopped by John Adkinson, a negro, who began to abuse him, Adkinson, a negro, who began to abuse him, making use of some very profane language. The white man said something to him, trying to stop him the best he could. This only angered the negro more and he grew worse than before. Patton by this time had become pretty well heated up himself. The negro waxed hetter and Patton started to get out of his buggy to give the negro a thrashing, but while he was in the act the negro commenced to pull out a pistol. Patton stopped and drawing his weaponu shot and killed Adkinson.

From the facts as brought to Griffly, the killed Adkinson.

From the facts as brought to Griffin, it seems that Patton was justified in the killing. The negro was drunk, but he made an attack on Patton who, being uathle to stop him by words, was preparing to check blue. ing. The negro was drunk, but he made an attack on Patton who, being uarble to stop him by words, was preparing to check him by means of a thrashing. This the negro stopped with the threat of a pistol, and Patton, to defend himself, drew his pistol and fired with the above result.

The negro was shot in the back and probably turned as Patton fired. From this it is probable that another version of the trouble will come to light. No trouble is known to have existed between the two.

Patton is a white farmer who is well known in Griffin and Spaiding county, and nothing disreputable has heretofore been connected with him.

John Adkinson, who was killed, lived on the piantation of Mr. Hai Pryor, near Hollonville, and was considered somewhat of a bad character.

The Sad Death of a Sister Brought on Heart

Richmond, Va., June 26.-(Special.)-Two unusually sad deaths have occurred in Richmond within the last twenty-four hours. At St. Luke's home yesterday afternoon Miss Pearl Gordon, of Rock Hill, S. C., a beauti-Pearl Gordon, of Rock Hill, S. C., a beautiful girl who was just budding into womanhood, yielded up her life to a disease that had troubled her for some months and necessitated a delicate operation. This afternoon, just twenty-four hours having intervened, her sister. Mrs. W. J. Orr, was found dead in her chamber, having died from heart failure brought on by liteuse grief. Mr. Orr, who accompanied the body of his sisterin-law to Rock Hill, was hastily called back home.

GARDNER AGAIN.

Jack Booth Swallowed Morphine to Keep | The Marietta Street Physician Is Arrested for Abortion.

THREE ARRESTS MADE IN THE CASE.

Ed Hollingsworth, Who, She Says, Is the Father of Her Child, Is Under Arrest, Coroner's Inquest and Verdict.

The checkered career of Crafton W. Gardner, physician, of 393 Marietta street, who has been twice arrested for abortion and charged with numerous other shady transactions, and has never yet been convicted, has at last been led to a serious accusation which will most likely terminate in a permanent retirement from business. Gardner was yesterday arrested for criminal abortion on the person of Miss Katie McEwen, an eighteen-year-old lady living on N. Boulevard. Ed Hollingsworth, a young bricklayer, twenty years old, who is said by the young lady to be the father of the dead child, and Lee Robinson, a negro living on Herbert street in the south ern part of the city, charged with having sheltered the young lady, were also arrested, and now occupy cells at police headquarters.

Miss Katie McEwen is about eighteen years old and is quite a pretty girl. Her father lives in Savannah; her mother is dead. She has a grown up brother living in Washington, D. C., and two smaller ones living with her father in Savannah. For five or six years she has made her home in Atlanta, living with her sister on the Boulevard. She has known Ed Holingworth since she has been living here.

on the Boulevard. She has known Ed Holingworth since she has been living here.
He lived on Houston street, just two blocks from where she lived, and the two were frequently together.
Hollingsworth is a good looking young man, smooth-faced, blue-eyed and fair-haired. He has, however, a defiant look, and was disposed to laugh off his arrest. Since four years ago he and Miss McEwen have been engaged to be married. She paid frequent visits to his home and they met often at other places. They never met at the at other places. They never met at the young girl's home. Hollingsworth had an invalid father and his father's family to support and kept putting off the marriage. The girl trusted him implicitly, never doubting that he would betray her confidence. Last Thursday afternoon Miss McEwen disappeared from her sister's home on the Boulevard and has not been seen there since.

Her sister did not know where she had zone, but no suspicion of the horrible truth dawned upon her mind. gone, but no suspicion of the horrible truth dawned upon her mind.

Coroner Paden was notified of the finding of the body of the dead babe, and yesterday afternoon he empanneled a jury of inquest and entered into a thorough investigation of the affair. Br. Wright, who had attended the young lady, testfiled that he had been led to believe from the appearance of the child that an abortion had been committed.

Miss McEwen testified sitting up in bed. She presented a pathetic picture, young and pretty, as she sat there before the gaze of the spectators and jurors. She made a statement containing substantially the same facts as already given. Her evidence was given in a straightforward manner, and created a deep impression on the jury. The wife of Lee Robinson also testified, corroborating the other testimony in the case.

It was night when a verdict was returned by the jury. The verdict was that the child came to its death by criminal abortion performed by Dr. Grafton Gardner, and recommended that Ed Hollingsworth and Lee Robinson be held as accessories. This morning Coroner Paden will swear out warrains against

FIGHTING ON A TRAIN. Two Negroes Badly Sinshed by Some White

Columbus, Ga., June 26.-(Special.)-Sun-Columbus, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—Sunday morning an excursion left Columbus on the Mobile and Girard railroad for Montgomery loaded with both whites and negroes. Montgomery was reached without any difficulties. On the return trip, it seems from reports that Luke Morgan, a negro, who worked at the depot here, became involved in a dispute with another negre, whose name could not be learned. Tom Tusk, a white man from Senie, Ala., took the part of the negro who was disputing with Morgan and finally whipped out his knife and stuck it into Morgan's head. This disabled Morgan completely. The conductor came in about this pletely. The conductor came in about this time and carried Tisk to the baggage car. A short while afterwards Sam Vickery, a negro carpenter from Columbus, came through the car and asked where the min was who cut Luke Morgan. He had hardly gotten the words out of his mouth when Henry Ware, a white man and a friend of Tusk's, also from Seale, pulled his knife and cut a long deep gash in Vickery's neck and then stuck the blade into the top of his head. Ali of this occurred while the train was running between Perry's Mills and Pike Road. When the train reached Pike road the two wounded negroes were put in charge of the agent there. The conductor telegraphed to Union Springs for officers to be at the train to arrest Tusk and Ware. When the thain reached there they were taken in custoday When the excursion reached Columbus it was reported that both negroes were dead, but yesterday morning San Vickery was brought to Columbus in a very precarious condition, but not dead. They also brought news that Luke Morgan was still living. Both negroes were badly cut, however, and may die.

WILL BEGIN TODAY.

The Commencement Season at the Tech Is at Hand.

THEY WILL BE INTERESTING EXERCISES.

All About the Commencement at the Technological School-A Crowd Will Go Out Today.

Today the commencement exercises of the Technological school begins out at the college grounds.

They promise to be of unusual interest, and there will be a large attendance no doubt the first day.

This, perhaps, is the most interesting day of the commencement. It is the day when the students are shown off at the practical work of the school in the machine shops.

They will be there in their overalls, all solled and stained and will be at work with the machine of avery shape and form grinding out. chines of every shape and form, grinding out their patterns and models. It is a study. Here in this machine shop the students of the Tech are at their best. Here they are taught the trades of every line. Here they get that knowledge which its them for the important mostions, they go out to full offer leaving the positions they go out to fill after leaving the college. It is easy to see what an interesting pieture, therefore, it will be for the patrons and friends of the institution today when they go out to the machine shops and see the young fellows on dress parade in their busy

The doors of the shop will be opened at 8 o'clock in the morning and will continue open until 12 o'clock today.

Tomorrow is commencement day proper at the Tech. It is the day when the students who graduate this year will read their theses and receive their diplomas. Dr. Hopkins, the president of the school, will deliver the baccalaureate address, and Mr. F. H. Richardson, of this city, will deliver the annual address before the school. The exercises will address before the school. The exercises will be interesting in the extreme.

Governor Northen will be among the distinguished visitors to the school and Chancelor Boggs, of the State university, will also be there to give out the diplomas.

The faculty of the school feel that they have reason to congratulate themselves this year upon the wonderful progress of the school. There will be quite a number of oright young men to get their diplomas today. They will certainly find no difficulty in winning their way to the very top of their different callings.

What They Are Doing.

What They Are Doing.

It is very interesting in this connection to observe what the students of the Tech have done for themselves after graduating.

Every one of the graduaties of the school are holding responsible and compensating positions with leading manufactories.

MR. TOLLESON WINS.

Judge Clarke Reverses the Judgment of the Recorder.

Judge Marshall J. Clarke, on yesterday, reversed the judgment of Recorder Carhoun wherein the recorder imposed a fine upon Mr. J. R. Tolleson for alleged improper familiarities with a Miss Pearson about a year ago. It will be remembered that the young woman was in Mr. Tolleson's employ as stenographer, and told her landlady in confidence that Tolleson had made improper advances to her. The landlady told two young men boarders and they visited Mr. Tolleson's office, when a serious difficulty was imminent for a time. The matter found its way into the courts, when the recorder imposed the fine mentioned.

Mr. Tolleson and his friends are delighted that vindication has come at last. When seen on yesterday by a Constitution reporter, Mr. Tolleson said:

"Of course, I am gratified at Judge Clarke's decision; still, I felt assured that that impartial and able judge would reverse the decision of the recorder.

"The incident was doubly distressing to me; being a southerner. I know public resentment springs up instantly and fiercely against one who is charged with unbecoming advances to a woman, and so deep seated is this feeling of manhood and chivalric sentiment that in the strength of such resentment oftentimes the voice of recson is not heard, and the innocent are crushed. Secondly, I was regretful on aecount of the young woman herself. It is true she was a typical western woman, amply able to take care of herself, and, as the evidence showed, she was not as circumspect as she should have been—indeed, permitted several young men about town to take remarkable liberties with her, as to which facts she voluntarily related to me. She did not prosecute me, and was contented in my employ, and she testified that I was trenting her with the ulmost respect. The young woman, I now believe, was, though very unwise, not lacking in virtue. I believe she keenly resented the whole affair, and would not have brought on the trouble had it been left to her, and for any pain caused her by the unhappy incident I am profoundly regretful. Miss Pearson does not reside in Georgia now, hence cannot speak for herself in this behalf.

AT THE EDGEWOOD.

'Fatinitza' Was Given a Grand Reception "Fatinitza" Was Given a Grand Reception Last Night.

"Fatinitza," charming and breezy, was given a grand reception last night at its initial production at the Edgewood Avenue theater. The house was crowded and a more generous and good-natured audience would have been hard to find. The bill was away above the average and every one present was greatly surprised at the evenness if the performance. The McCaul company had the opera down pat and it went with a crispness and smoothness that charmed aven the singers themselves. "Fatinitza" is in many respects a catchy musical work. The masquerade march in the first act was a great feature and it took four encores to satisfy the audience.

Mr. Pearson, as the count, was good, while Miss McIntyre, as Captain Vasil, took well with the audience. Miss Pierce, as the princess, did well. She was unusually good in her singing and you know what that means. Mr. Gurville, as the war correspondent of The New York Herald, was heartily received. The music of this role seems better adapted to Mr. Gurville's voice than he has heretofore sung. Miss Dressier, in the title role, of course, was right in it. The singing of Mr. Mack, as Steipann, was all that could be asked. The rest of the cast was very acceptable. Last Night.

ATLANTA, GA., June 27, 1893.

No Room for Sectional Dissatisfaction We observe a tendency on the part of some of the newspapers of south Georgia to complain that the administration is not dealing fairly with that part of the state in the matter of federal appointments, and to enter a mild protest at what they term to be presidential oversight.

This is an injustice not only to th administration, but to north Georgia. Of the appointments so far made the president has appointed a United States marshal for the southern district of Georgia, which was offset by the appointment of a marshal of the northern district. A district attorney was then se Jected for each of the two judicial districts. A collector of the port is to be named for Atlanta, and this will be offset by two collectors of ports for southeast Georgia, one at Savannah, the other at Brunswick. Lighthouse keepers are to be appointed for Tybee, Simons, Cumberland, Sapelo, and probably one or two other islands on the Georgia coast. North Georgia will receive the benefit of no such appointments. In the distribution of the big offices north Georgia was recognized in the selection of the cabinet, and south Georgia in the appointment of Hon. James G. Blount as minister plenipo tentiary and envoy extraordinary to Hawaii. Hon. Harvey Johnson, of 'Atlanta, and Hon. J. M. Dobbs, of Cobb county, have been chosen as consuls, but these two places will be more than balanced by the additional number of collectors and lighthouse keepers to be named for south Georgia. In this connection it may be stated that Hon. Bascom Myrick, of Sumter county would certainly have been sent to Ber lin if he had not called the president a mugwump. Hence, there having been no sectional objection, and it being clear that, as a south Georgian, he would have received the appointment had i not been for his unfortunate reference. the place should be entered to south Georgia's credit, even though he did

Of course, in the selection of the col lector of internal revenue the president had to make a choice from either the northern or the southern part of the state. He could not name a man from both. It happened that north Georgia got it in the person of Mr. Trammell Just as President Cleveland, eight years ago, appointed two ministers, General Lawton and General Jackson, from outh Georgia, while north Georgia got virtually nothing.

Thus it will be seen that there is little ground for complaint. The president, of course, cannot gratify everybody, nor can he spare the time to weigh the balance for equal recognition of each section of every state. He-has done unusually well in Georgia, in holding things even, and we regret to see any evidences of complaint based on sectional grounds.

Silver in the South.

Our Washington correspondent reports General Catchings, of Mississippi, as saying:

Eighteen months ago the south was strong Eignieen months ago the south was strong-ly in favor of free coinage, but it is not so today. Sentiment is changing. If asked to make a gress, I should say that it is half and half. The case of sound money has ed very rapidly.

We are forced to the conclusion that General Catchings has been misled. With hundreds of southern newspapers on our exchange list, and with other opportunities for noting the drift of public sentiment in the south, we feel satisfied that if there is any change in sentiment it is in favor of the free coinage of silver.

But General Catchings is right when he says that the cause of sound money has gained very rapidly. Our business men and farmers have studied this era of falling prices, and they are strongly convinced that the only semedy is to restore the bimetallic standard which worked so satisfactorily in this country for seventy-six years. If the question of the demonetization of silver had been brought fairly before congress in 1873 it would have been defeated by a two-thirds vote. This statement has been made time and again by congressmen who were familiar with the situation. The bill demonetizing silver was supposed to contain some unimportant amendments to existing laws regulating the weights and measures of coinage. The act was the result of a British scheme to revolutionize our financial system in order to prevent gold from constantly going from England to the United States. The trick was successful, and according to the admission of Mr. Ernest Seyd, of London, the agent of the foreign capi-spent $500,000 to carry it through con-Our people know the history of detization, and they have felt its disus effects. They know that if we ande silver sound money for three-quarers of a century, and if France did it or the same period, that we can do it again, especially as ours is the chief tinning, The Enquirer-Sun, whose dis-

talists, Germany, England and Holland

THE GONSTITUTION. silver producing country of the world. The whole business is in our hands, and we can control it, with or without international agreement.

> The people of the south, suffering from the evils of a currency famine, are not willing to see the volume of their circulating medium contracted toany further extent. They demand sound money, but they do not want money so preclous and so scarce that it cannot be had to move the crops and carry on the business of the agricultural sections.

> If General Catchings will move about more among his own people, we feel that is safe to say that he will find them, like the people of Georgia, very solidly united in favor of the free silver coinage sound money plank of the democratic platform.

Not a Practical View. Ex-Senator Ingalls argues that genral laws, under which the 20,000,000 workers in the United States would have higher wages and fewer hours of labor, would mean greater activity in all branches of business, increased consumption of products, better education of children, happier homes, purer politics and better government. He contends that employers would lose nothing because their employes, with higher wages, would consume more, and thus the money paid out to them would return to the manufacturers and producers who employed them.

It is all very fine, but it is one of the Kansas statesman's iridescent dreams. The general laws he suggests would not operate satisfactorily in this big country with its diverse interests. The New England manufacturers, straining every herve to compete with the south, now want longer hours and lower wages. Place the two sections under the same law in regard to wages and hours of work, and the cheap raw material, fuel and water power of the south would smash the New England manufacturing interests. Nor would such a law work well any where. The supply of labor fluctuates. It is abundant in one locality and scarce n another. The workers would_themselves ask for free competition, and it would be impossible to maintain high wages and short working days in localities where thousands were clamoring for work on any terms.

If Mr. Ingalls wants to engage in Utopian experiments he should join the populists of his own state who seem de rmined to take everything from everybody and give it back to everybody It is a very interesting experiment and its like has never been seen in our times outside of Bedlam. But Mr. ingalls is not a safe adviser. Recently he wanted to deport the negroes to Africa. If his labor scheme failed to pan out well, it would be just like him to advocate the deportation of all the workingmen who were out of a job and willing to work for low wages. No act of congress will ever cause every body to be employed at high wages with little or nothing to do.

Out of Date.

The Boston Advertiser reproduces as curiosity, portions of a magazine article written by an Englishman some years ago, in which it was argued that this country would be better off cut up into two or three separate republics.

The Englishman declared that our territory was too vast and had too many pposing interests to remain prosperous and contented under one government He predicted that the preponderance of capital in one section would some time | do well to emulate. cause the other sections to assume a hostile attitude, and he said that when the Pacific states became populous they would resent the idea of sending their representatives 2.000 miles to legislate for them when it would be more convenient and satisfactory to have their own congress at home. With separate republics the people of the northeast, the south and the west would have their own money centers and money systems, and their commercial interests would keep them at peace with each other. We do not see why The Boston Advertiser should give place to these arguments at the present time. In the early history of the country New England wanted to set up an independent government, and the south attempted it later, but secession is now one of the dead doctrines of the dead past. The English writer failed to note the workings of our state governments. If he had studied our system of local home rule he would have seen that under a proper construction of the powers of the states they are able to do the most desirable things that separate republics would have the power to do. Take the money question, for instance. When the democrats carry out their pledge and restore to the states the power of chartering local banks of issue-a power which was unconstitutionally away from them-they will be able to currency for every locality. The policy of the future will not be to disintegrate this splendid heritage, but to add to it. There will be no dissevered and belligerent states, but there will be new states added to the union. and the American flag may be destined to float over territory now a thousand miles distant from our berders.

Taking Issue with the Administration We regret to see our esteemed contemporary, The Columbus Enquirer-Sun, exhibiting an inclination to express dissatisfaction at its apparent belief that the administration is ignoring southwest Georgia in the distribution of the federal patronage of the state.

Such is not the case, and, even were it so, it would surprise us to find such an enthusiastic administration "organ' as The Enquirer-Sun has been, commenting adversely on it. The Enquirer-Sun has occasionally given The Constitution a good natured lecture because we have not thought it necessary, or requisite, to surrender our opinion in order that we may agree with the administration in everything it does, fight or wrong; but when our Washington correspondent announced a few days ago that Colonel Sam Thanhouser, of Atlanta, would be appointed as consul to Matamoras, The Enquirer-Sun so far forgot itself as to attack the administration by announcing that there was not a word of truth in "this sort of gossip by Washington correspondents." Continguished editor is an applicant for a onsular appointment, and than whom no one in Georgia would make a better epresentative abroad, says: "It is difficult to understand why the state department should make such a special natter of the appointment of Sammy Thanhouser, who seems to be utterly unknown in Georgia."

The Enquirer-Sun is materially wrong not only in its effort to make it appear that the report of our Washington correspondent is unreliable, in his anuncement of Mr. Thanhouser's approaching appointment, but it is decidedly off in its estimate of the popularity of the splendid Atlanta gentleman, whom it terms "Sammy" Thanhouser. Colonel Thanhouser not only conducts one of the largest business establishments in Atlanta, but he has been a Cleveland man from away back, and if it had not been for the indefatigable services of himself, Hon. B. M. Blackourn and Hon. Harvey Johnson, Mr. Cleveland would never have carried this county in the selection of delegates to the state convention. This is the distinguished trio that broke up the famous compromise in the delegation from this county. Your Uncle Sam Thanhouser is not only solid with the administration, but may be classed as an intimate friend of it. The reliability of our Washington correspondent's report will be attested one day this week, and before another moon Colonel Than-houser will be picking a mandolin across he Rio Grande. The Enquirer-Sun seems to be "en capport" with the administration in verything but the matter of consular appointments. It is inclined to kick at every batch of names announced by the president as representatives of our gloious country abroad. We earnestly rust that in the next few days we will have the pleasure of chronicling the appointment of our distinguished friend, the editor of The Enquirer-Sun, and the only regret that it will occasion us will be in the doss of his genial presence from the post which he fills so creditably

However, we trust that until this apcointment is made, our newspaper friend will drop his tendency to take ssue with the administration in the matter of consular appointments while he lectures The Constitution for disagreeing with it for not calling an immediate extra session of congress.

The City on the Chattahoochee. The city of Columbus, on the rapid and power-propelling Chattahoochee lisplays an industrial activity at this season of the year which argues a steady and increasing prosperity, and while its usiness interests may not be exempt rom the stringency felt throughout the ountry in dull times, they are still in bright way and pushing forward daily.

The citizens of Columbus are wedded o the welfare of their city, and are quick to encourage and foster new enterprises; they stand manfully together and keep time to the march of progress they have faith in the future, and theirs is the faith of works.

The thrift of Columbus demonstrates the worth of manufactories to a town; is a manufacturing city, with large weekly pay-rolls that keep money in circulation winter and summer, and this money, scattered through the town, makes business for the merchants at all times; manufactories make trade, and Columbus is reaping a rich harvest from ed sown in the past. Atlanta's Masterplece.

Our citizens talk about that climax of American genius-that masterpiece of architectural art-that wondrous dream of beauty and splendor, the famous White City which contains the world's fair, but how many of them know that it is the creation of an Atlanta man's brain?

The Chicago Inter Ocean has a long and appreciative editorial tribute to the late John Wellborn Root, in which it gives him due credit for his part in the Columbian exposition. Among other things our contemporary says:

But that fealous death intervened to him from approaching fame the name of John Wellborn Root would be chiefly honored in our midst today, for he would be esteemed of all the makers of the fair city, the one most eminently deserving distinction. Mr. Root had that quality of greatness that is magnanimous in recognition of the abilities and moral rights of others. When was committed to him the architectural charge of the entire to him the architectural charge of the entire work, his large mindedness and fine artistic work, his large mindedness and fine artistic sensibilities were inspired not by a selfash emotion to glorify himself, but by the noble purpose to have the fair a national monument bearing to honor the names of a hundred artists. It was his idea that the world of artists of every department be invited into unrestricted competition to set their high fancies tangibly before the admiring multi-tide. It was his idea, the the few should tude. It was his idea that the fair should be in its structures and in its grounds a fle light and an education no less than in its gathered exhibits. The results have been in conformity with his preconceptions and designs, and for the first time in the history of the world's expositions the setting has fa excelled in interest and beauty and signifi cance the jewels it contains.

The conceiver of a noble plan is deserving of higher honors than its executors, and as Mr. Root was a man of unmistakable genius, in whose mind and soul music and poetry and criticism and art had interpreters and servants, so that he might in pursuit of either have won a fame as dear as that he was er have won a fame as dear as that he was achieving ir architecture, and as his genius is symbolized in that by which we are unspeakably entranced when we pass the portals of the White City, it is eminently consonant with his worth and with the sense of just acknowledgement that the man himself be memorialized and typified to the multitude that would be glad to honor him.

We propose, in short, that the directory of the world's fair cause to be set in the center. We propose, in short, that the directory of the world's fair cause to be set in the center of the rotunda beneath the dome of the ad-ministration building, a statue or bust of John Wellborn Root, with a tablet suitably inscribed to the planning architect of the White City. It would be a goodly and an honest thing to do, and grateful hands would keep the memorial garlanded with flowers as the throngs pass by. This man of genius was the son of our fellow citizen, Major Sidney Root.

He was a native Georgian, and spent his boyhood in Atlanta. His earlier education began in our city and was after wards completed in Europe. The prompt recognition of his marvelous taste, judg ment and executive ability in architectural matters naturally drew him into larger fields of enterprise than this section offered, but from first to last the young Atlantian was a loving and loyal son of the Gate City.

The Inter Ocean's tribute is very gratifying to the friends of Mr. Root in Atlanta, and they will take all the more interest in the White City because it is the realization of his ideas and plans. It is to be hoped that the suggestion wil be carried out in regard to placing the architect's statue or bust in the administration building.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Census Bulletin 375 deals with the white Baptists. The organizations noticed in the bulletins before us are the regular baptists, north and south, the Primitive and the Old-Two-Seed-in-the-Spirit Predestinarian. The number of the regular Baptists, north, is returned as 800,025, while the regular Baptists outh, number 1,276,491. The Primitive Bap tists have 94,348 communicants, and the Pre-destinarian, 9,932. The northern Baptists have 414 associations, 7,902 congrega and church edifices valued at $49,500,000 They are most numerous in the states of New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania, where they have, respectively, 129,771, 95,237 and Massachusetts, Ohio and Indiana have each over 50,000 members Among these are German churches, which have conferences of their own purches number 200, with 17,000 members with 12,000 members. Under this head are ncluded the regular Baptists of and most of those of West Virginia. The outhern Baptists have 657 associations, 206 organizations and 13,472 church edifices valued at over $18,000,000. Kentucky has the largest membership, 153,668, but North Caro-lina is a wonderfully close second, with 153,-348; Georgia has 137,860; Texas, 129,734; Missouri, 121.985, and Tennessee, naking a total in these six states of 803,527, or nearly two-thirds of the whole number of members in the south. Besides the southern states proper, there are churches in dian territory, Oklahoma and Kansas, None s reported from Delaware.

Mr Robert Louis Stevenson gave lately "a word of advice to young New Zealand on the methods to be pursued in the cultivation of literary style." He recommended the following course of study: "If a young m wishes to learn to write English he shot read everything." This statement was quali-fied by the exclusion of "the present century in a body." Shakespeare, Thomas Jeremy Taylor, Dryden and Samuel Johnson should be carefully considered. In this century authors are too "slovenly;" but Mr. Stevenson hastened to add that he has "one feather in his cap, and that is, I am not a sloven." Forgetting advice just given, Mr. Stevenson recummended Scott, although "he makes me long to box his ears," Hazlitt, Ruskin, Napier, Leslie Stephen, Pater and Saintsburg. He also spoke kindly of the Latin language. But, if style is the best exression of individuality, will it not injure a writer to make a very close study of other writers? Will he not be in danger of imitating another man's individuality;

The rain making process will be exhibited t the world's fair, and on a certainday the White City will be deluged. There must be something in this rain-making business. It eems to give satisfaction in some portions eat in the History Journalism.

The Madisonian: The paper was the greatest feat in the history of Georgia journalism. Early County News: The Atlanta Constitu-tion is the leading paper of the south, if not of the union. The people of Georgia are proud of their great paper. Jackson Argus: The Atlanta Constitution is not only the best newspape; in the country, but it is the most carefully edited paper in the United States. Its ufferences have the emocratic ring every time. Cedartown Standard: One of the largest papers ever seen in the south. The Constitu-tion has seen sectional bitterness give way to the happy fellowship of a counited country, and has the proud satisfaction of having been largely instrumental in the great work of bringing all sections to a better under-standing of one another. True to the south and to Georgia, The Constitution is closely touch with the great heart of the people. Meriwether Vindicator: The Atlanta Con stitution of Sunday last contained reading natter sufficient to make a good sized book.

Much of it was specially entertaining t Georgians. The history of the paper's be-ginning and subsequent progress is told by members of the present editorial force. Colonel W. A. We became a subscriber to the paper soon after its first issue, it leing then about the size of The Vindicator.

Waynesboro True Citizen: Justly The At anta Constitution may assume that it has seen the prop which has helped to rear a great city and many enterpies in the hear of Georgia, for it is indeed a part of the his tory of Atlanta. But outside of all this enter-prise, it has steadily fostered what, nerhaps, has been of greater interest, the literary growth of Georgia. This is rue journalistic labor which ennobles journalism. The Cittzen extends its sincere congratuations to our great Georgia paper, and adds its mede of honoring the energy, enterprise, ability an influence of the south's famous journal.

Elberton Gazette: The Constitution has always been foremost in pointing the road to prosperity and success for our people. There is no denying its great popularity, especially is to dealying its great popularity, especially in Georgia and the south, and today it stands in the very front rank of southern journals, if indeed it has a peer, and we naturally turn to The Constitution for the latest and most interesting news of the day. It has been a great factor in building up and developing our state, and to it Atlanta is indebted for much of her success and prosperity, and all Georgians should feel a pride in its achievments and success.

About the Street Tax.

About the Street Tax.

Editor Constitution—The advocates of the increase in the street tax should not be deceived by the idea that a large majority of the voters of this city pay no taxes on real estate from the fact that their names do not appear as such upon the books.

This "large majority" must have an abiding place. What would capitalists think of the financial ability of a man who, when he wished to build a tenement house, did not make a careful estimate as to the insurance, the taxes and the interest he himself would receive upon the investment?

An ad valorem tax is a just tax, because it is intended that it shall fall upon each person according to the value of his property; but what can be claimed, in the way of justice, for a tax which falls as heavily upon the laborer, earning only 75 cents per day, as it does upon the skilled mechanic earning from $3 to $5 per day?

All experience testifies to the fact that through wise investments those who have real eatate have been enabled to live well and have even accumulated a large bank deposit, that the insurance on the houses they occupy the tax books show enormous burdens, but the renant, first of all, pays the taxes to them; not only on the houses they occupy, but furnish the entire income, a part of which even mays the taxes on the residences they themselves occupy. FIGHTING SILVER.

India Mints Ordered to Stop the Free Coinage of the Metal

AND TO ADOPT A GOLD STANDARD

It Is Announced in Parliament-Interviews with Financiers-Secretary Carlisle Consults the President, Etc.

London, June 26.—In the house of lords to-day the earl of Kimberly, lord president of the council and secratary of state for India, states that the Indian council had passed an act for the immediate closing of the Indian mints to the free coinage of silver. He added that arrangements are being made for an issue of rupees from mints for gold at a rate of 16 cents per rupee. The earl of Kimberly said that he intended to introduce the gold stan-dard in India; that gold in the meantime will not be made the sole legal tender.

In the house of commons, Mr. Gladstone gave information similar to that given in the house of lords by the earl of Kimberly. He added that gold would not be made a legal added that gold would not be made a legal-tender at present. Regarding the silver now on the way to India Mr. Gladstone said that the government of India nad been insructed that it was open to admit this silver to the mints if it thought fit.

The Right Hon. J. C. Goshen, formerly chancellor of the exchequer, asked the ad-ministration if the free coinage of silver now going to India would not establish a great in-jury or effect the destructon of such sil-ver as was in the hands of the natives.

Mr. Goshen said that the value of the sirver, possessed by the natives amounted to 100,000,000 rupees.

Replying to Mr. Goshen, Mr. Gladstone said he was not in possession of precise information, but he assumed that the Indian government would not make discriminatory rates to the disadvantage of the persons holding uncoined silver. Most of the uncoined silver referred to by Mr. Goshen was in the form of ornaments held by the natives.

The Correspondence on the Matter. The correspondence between the govern-ment of India and the India office has been issued. It opens with a letter from the In-dian council under date of March 28, 1892, urging the home government to aid in the settlement of the silver question by an international agreement, failing in which not to defer determining upon an Indian policy, as if an international agreement should not be obtained the United States might suddenly stop the colonage of silver, leaving India un-propagate. stop the comage of siver, leaving the same apprepared.

The other communications discuss the fall in the rupee value. The council, in a letter written on June 10, 1892, advises that if the international monetary conference at Brussels fails and a direct agreement between India and the United States cannot be obtained, the mints of India be closed to the free coinage of silver and a gold standard be introduced. In a minute Mr. Barbour, financial secretary of India, opposed the stoppage of free coinage until it becomes evident that the United States will not adopt free coinage. Mr. Barbour estimates that the active circulation in India ameunts to 115,000,000 rupees, while a much larger proportion is hoarded. To establish a gold currency with a full legal tender currency composed entirely of gold, it would be necessary to withdraw from circulation 1,150,000,000 of sterling gold. He, therefore, contends that with a gold standard in India, a large proportion of the circulation must continue in silver with silver a legal tender to any amount. If bimetalism is maintained a gold coinage to the total amount of £15,000,000 will suffice. Mr. Long in a minute to the council of August 18, 1812, discussed the adoption of the gold standard and concludes by suggesting that the ratio of conversion be about 1 to 20.

In a subsequent telegram from the earl of Kimberly to the viceroy of India, dated June 7, 1832, the former announces the recommendations of the Merschell commission as adopted by the council at Simia today. In advising the India government to exchange gold at the rate of 6d, to the rupee, the commission says that the object is to guard against a sudden considerable rise in exchange, Hereafter the ratio outh to be raised, if circumstances make it advisable. Telegrams received totaly from Calculat by the Anglo-Indian banks here state that the Indian expression to the state of the coincer. repared.
The other communications discuss the fall he Anglo-Indian banks here state that the Indian government has stopped the coinage of silver for private account at the Indian mints.

Rupee paper has risen 2 pence. About fifty lacs worth has already been sold at an average price of 1 shilling 3 1-2 pence. According to advices from Hembay, the india council held at Shula today besides stopping the minting of silver on private account fixed the rate of exchange at 1-4.

Discussed in New York.

New York. June 26 .- The cessation of the free colnage of silver by the government of India was a fruitful source of conversation aniong financiers today. Business was resumed this morning with a general feeling of depression, growing out of a combination of unfavorable circumstances. Fresh failures from various part of the country and stringent money were a good foundation for the amouncement of the stoppage of the Indian silver mints. A prominent banker, who is also one of the heaviest silver builton dealers in Wall street, said to a reporter, when the announcement came:

"That is a crushing blow to silver. The effect will be paralyzing to the whole silver market and I think the settlement of the silver question in this country is now at hand. The mints have been open for free coinage and such immense quantities of silver have been presented by private parties and the circulation of silver became so great that the price of the Indian runce has been declining steadily for months. This has brought about the suspension of free coinage. It has been done by the official class of the country. Their pay is in the India rupee and they were beginning to suffer seriously from its depreciation in value."

Still another large bullion shipper had this to say: "I don't see how the action of the India inanciers today. Business was re-depreciation in value."

Still another large bullion shipper had this to say:

"I don't see how the action of the India government in closing the mints will much diminish the demand for silver in India. India is a credit country and I don't see how her balance of trade is to be settled save in the old way of silver. If the mints are closed, then the government would have to import silver to coin in place of that obtained from private parties. That the demand for silver would be lessened would be in consequence of the low price of silver. Last year the excessively low price of silver made the total imports by India. China and the straits very much larger than the average of the previous years, and so far the imports by these three countries are ahead of last year. The government would be compelled to do as the Indian banks do, that is, buy silver in London. It is not stated whether the gold value of the rupee is fixed at 10 pence, but from the papers in London it would seem that this is the case. The effect of this is that so far as Indian trade is concerned. the fail of silver is stopped. Those who will sum by any further fail in silver will be the Indian government, who will make the difference between the buillion value of silver and the coloned value, as our government does here on every silver dollar coloned. The depreciation of the rupee, however, is stopped. The fail in silver has been in anticination of this action. We do not see that beyond southent, the silver market will be greatly affected."

Carlisle Consults the President.
Washington, June 26.—The president, Secretary Carlisle and the financial officers of the rovernment generally received their first thentic news of the startling fact of thentic news of the startling fact of India suspending silver coinage through the pressilispatches. There had been rumors early in the day, but they were passed upon as rumors only, though their substantial accuracy was not doubted. When the reports of Mr. Gladstone's announcement in the house of commons and Lord Kimberly's statement in the house of lords were received the gravity of the situation became at once apparent. Mr. Carlisic immediately went out to the white house and for two hours fiscused the hearings of this action with the president without reaching any positive conclusion as to a line of action to be adopted. The conference was renewed at Woodlawn, the president's suburban retreat later in the evening and was protracted far into the night. The circumstances are regarded as too serious to permit of any authentic expression of oblion as to

ALL BUT A VERDICT.

Miss Julia Force Brought from Her Cell in the Fulton County Jail.

A JURY IS VERY QUICKLY SECURED

And After a Plea of Not Guilty Had Been Entered the Trial Begins.

ALL OF THE EVIDENCE IS NOW IN

And This Morning the Attorneys for Both the Defense and the State Will Make Their Argument.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning the trial of the state against Miss Julia Force, charged with the murder of her sisters, Misses Minnie and Florence Force, was Miss Julia Force is resting under two indictments for murder. In one indictment she is charged with the murder of her sis-Miss Minnie Force, and in the second she is charged with the murder of her sec and sister, Miss Florence Force.

Just why this was done is not stated, but Miss Julia Force was put on trial yesterday in the case of the state against her self, charged with the murder of Miss Minnie Force. Should Miss Force be found guilty of murder-although it is hardly probable-Solicitor Hill has as yet not determined whether or not he will put her on trial for the second murder.

Miss Julia Force walked into the courtof the superior court yes-morning at a few minterday utes before 9 o'clock accompanied by her faithful friend and relative, Mrs. o'clock accompanied Benjamin Conley, and Sheriff Barnes. Miss Force was brought from the jail in a back. She was dressed in a costume of brown, and wore a heavy veil of brown, which enveloped her face, and completely hid from view her features. When she entered the courtroom she looked neither to the right nor the left, but suffered herself to be lead to a chair where her attorneys were seated, and sank apparently belpless into left elbow on the left arm of the chair and leaned her head forward until her left cheek rested upon her hand. In this ather eyes closed, she sat the entire morning trial, not a word to any and remaining unconscious of her surroundings and the fact that she was the cynosure of all eyes. She breathed in a laboring manner, as though she was resting under an intense excitement which she was endeavoring to conceal, and her veil fluttered inward and outward, the only preceptible of life about the unfortunate woman. The first move that Miss Force made was in the afternoon, when she removed her veil, on account of the heated state of the atmosphere in the courtroom, and only once did she speak, then to her attorney, Colonel Hardeman, her kinsman.

The Fatal Shots. Miss Force's crime is too well known to need any dwelling upon, and the sad story but brings up sad memories of an insane woman's terrible and blood-thirsty deed. double, murder occurred on Saturday, February 25th, just at the very time when the city was wild over a bank defalcation gand a couple of suicides. From the statements made by Miss Force herself the murder was a deliberate one, which was well planed and faithfully executed. The mother was absent from home; the two servants were dispatched on errands, and the way was clear for the horrible deed that was to force was shot down first, the room was locked, and the fully aroused murderess then turned her attention to her invalid sister, who was in room mostairs. She entered the room with the pistol beneath her apron, and the not from High & Co. in the other hand.

Since she has been in jail, according to terday, she has professed sorrow at having done what she did, but despairingly declares given. The testimony in the case vesterday tended to show, without the shadow of a doubt, that Miss Force is, and was, a mon omaniae of the worst type. In the testichurch weman, an earnest worker in the cause of the Lord-in fact, a woman who was recommended by one bishop to another as the very person to help on the good work who suddenly developed into one who did not hesitate to use profane language. From a woman of fastidious tastes and holy purpose, Miss Force's monomania drew her to a path which she had never known before. A kind daughter and a considerate and loving sister, she was transformed into just the opposite by the terrible mental stress which she was powerless to over-come; where the family was concerened into a fit of anger or a spell of melencholia.

The State's View.

The state made out its case fairly strong could be had, and nearly every witness, on a close cross-examination by the attorneys for the defense, ended by virtually becoming a witness for the defense. Solicitor Hill's attempt was apparently to show that she was sane at the time of the murder as her reason for killing her sisters was not based upon an insane delusion, but an actual fact, the High note, wheh Miss Julia had declared was an eternal insult, one which capped the climax. He drew from witnesses the deliberate manner in which she planned the murder, and brought which she planned the murder, and brought forward in a clear light how she realized the magnitude and helnousness of the crime that she was about to commit and prayed that she might be thwarted by the appearance upon the scene of her mother.

Every witness for the defense swore that since November there had been a change in Miss Julia's ways, and that she was evidently losing her mind, or at least, becoming mentally unbalanced. The sadden change in her character, as has already been mentioned, was dwelt upon by the defense, and when the defense announced closed there was not a single person in the courthouse who had heard the entire testimony that did not believe Miss Julia Force insane.

Both sides announced "ready," and the first panel was called in order to select the jurors. The work of securing the jury went forward rapidly and at a few minutes past 10 o'clock the jury that was to decide the fate of Miss Julia Force had been chosen.

took occasion to do so after the jury had been brought out of the jury room, but before it had been sworn. Solicitor Hill read the indictment of the state against Miss Julia Force, charged with the murder of her sister, Mias Minnie Force.

The first witness for the state called to the stand was Dr. J. B. Baird, who was put up for the state by mistake, Solicitor Hill withdrawing him, stating that he was under the impression that Dr. Baird was the first physician to reach the house after the killing.

Dr. A. N. Tally was the next witness but his only evidence was to the effect that he saw Miss Minnie Force after she was dead, and that the ball had entered the left front of the head, causing death.

Detective E. M. Cason testified about Miss Force's having come to the station house to see the chief about a matter of importance. At the time he did not know what it was. She appeared to be very cool and calm.

"Captain Wright then came in." said what it was. She appeared to be very cool and calm.

"Captain Wright then came in," said Cason, "and I told her she could talk to him. He had heard of the murder and told her so, but the only thing that she asked was whether or not her mother had come. Chief Connolly's Testimony.

"I know Miss Force by sight," said Chief Connolly the next witness, "and I talked with her, after she gave herself up, about the crime. She didn't deny having done it, but refused to talk. She then took off a breastpin which she was wearing containing a miniature of her father and handed it to me, saying that she was unworthy to wear it. She said that she had a book that would explain it all. She was not incoherent, and inversed me as being not incoherent, and impressed me as being perfectly rational "

Dr. T. S. Powell testified that he has been a practicing physician for forty-five years, thirty-three of which he had spent in At-lanta. He said that he knew thirty-three of which he had spent in Atlanta. He said that he knew Miss Minnie Force, but didn't think that he was acquainted with Miss Julia. He recollected the circumstances of the killing and saw the body of the young lady upstairs. She was lying on the bed with her feet hanging over the edge, her brains protruding. She was shot back of the right ear, according to the testimony of Dr. Powell.

Dr. J. C. Olmstead a Witness. "I went to the Force house," said Dr. Oimstead, "the afternoon of the killing, and I saw Miss Minnie's body downstairs in the second room on the right as you enter the front door. She was dead and her body was on the floor, doubled up, lying on the left side, with the arms across her breast. I found the exit of the ball, but at the time was unable to determine where it entered. When the body was laid out I saw by the bleeding that the bullet had entered the back of the head at the base of the skull. "I had a conversation with Miss Julia Force Saturday morning, the day after the killing, and she said that she killed her sisters, but gave two accounts about the kill-ing of Miss Minnie. She spoke about her brothers being unkind to her, and thought that her sisters had been instrumental in bringing about that state of affairs. said that she had prayed that she might not have to do what she did, but was ob-liged to. She said also that she had been disgraced by the order to Mr. High not to give her credit.

"I got Miss Force's book from Mrs.
Rosa Wright and turned it over to the chief of police."

On cross-examination Dr. Olmstead said: "Miss Julia told me that if she had killed "Miss Juna told me that it she had kined Allie, her brother, it would have thwarted her plans. She wanted to mortify the fam-ily, and wanted Allie to see her hung. I think that she was undoubtedly insane at the time of the killing."

The Negro Servants Testify.

Millie Van Epps, who cooked for the Force family at the time of the killing, told about Miss Julia Force having sent her out upon an errand and upon her return having told her to go tor Mr. Allie. Lula James, the chamber maid testified that Miss Julia had sent her out to West End on an errand which had occupied her

He Sold Her the Pistol.

Paul Carey, a salesman at the Lowry Hardware Company, testified that he sold a lady a pistol five or six days before the Force tragedy and believed that Miss Julia was the one to whom he sold it. She had already picked it out and told him at what she had priced it. She said that she wanted it as she had joined a target practice club. He instructed her how to load and unload as she requested him to do so.

Mrs. Rosa Wright on the Stand.

The first lady witness was Mrs. Rosa Wright. She is a dear friend of Miss Force. Her testimony was as follows:
"I have known Miss Julia Force about twelve or fifteen years, and she had visited latterly against her brothers. She said that she didn't receive the affection that she should have and she seemed to think that her mother didn't love her as well as she did Minnie and Florence. She would fuss and quarrel, as we women always do, and afterwards she would change the subject and be all right. I took the telling of her troubles like I would a dose of medicine. "One morning she came to me and told me that she had been eternally disgraced. She said that she had received a note from High & Co. denying her credit. Some weeks before this she had threatened her life by her own hand, but she promised me didn't receive the affection that she weeks before this she had threatened her life by her own hand, but she promised me that she would not do so, and I trusted her. Usually she blazed out and was exceedingly indignant, but this time she was as cool and collected as I ever saw her.

"About the shooting, she said that she showed the note to her sister Minnie and then shot her. She sent me a note for a book on the day of the shooting."

"Didn't Admire My Reading." "I picked up a novel and sent it to her, was very much surprised at her sending o me for a book, as she didu't admire my to he for a door, as see flot t admire my style of reading. On that same day she handed me a book she said was the statement of all her troubles, and told me to keep it until I received a written order from her. I did so, and the book was turned over the December 4.

Mrs. Wright Cross-Examined

"Did your woman's curiosity cause you to read the book?" asked the solicitor, by way of getting the witness in a good har-"It did not," was the reply, the tone of voice rising rapidly at an angle of ninely degrees. "I read it in the newspapers, but I don't suppose that the account was core does not realize the horrible thing that she has done. I commenced doubting her sanity when she told me she had a brother in the asylum. I have come to the conclusion, since visiting her at the jail, that she will soon lose her mind."

"You don't know of your own knowledge whether her wrongs were real or imagi-nary?" asked Solicitor Hill.

"I am not infallible," replied Mrs. Wright,
"but I speak what I think."

Mr. J. M. High a Witness. Mr. J. M. High, of the firm of High &

Mr. J. M. High, of the firm of High. & Co., was the next witness, and the solicitor tried to obtain some information from him about the note written to Miss Julia Force at the solicitation of her brother. Mr. High knew nothing about it, however, and he was called down and a subpoeua sent for the credit man of the firm, Mr. J. E. Mc-Clelland.

Mr. Alex W. Bealer, of The Journal, who was on hand reporting the trial for his paper, was the next witness. He was merely wanted to testify in regard to the atatements of Miss Force before the ordinary's court. He stated that she had said that she was not crazy just after the verdict of in-

The cross-examination by Solicitor Hill brought the following:

"Mr. Allie Force came into the store one evening and said that he wanted the account of Miss Julia H. Force stopped, and asked us how we went about it. He gave no reason for wanting the credit stopped."

The state rested at this juncture and Cream Headers.

no reason for wanting the credit stopped."

The state rested at this juncture and Colonel Hardeman arose to state that the defense of the defendant would be that she was mentally irresponsible at the time of the killing. And also to show that the note from High was the cause of the killing.

"We also propose to show," said Colonel Hardeman, "that the holy bishop of this sate after calling on her believes that she is of unsound mind."

First Witness for the Defense.

The first witness for the Defense, was Dr.

The first witness for the defense was Dr. J. B. Baird, who had been the first witness called for the prosecution by the solicitor by mistake. Dr. Baird's testimony is given in full as it is peculiarly interesting. "I will state," said Dr. Baird, "that it "I will state," said Dr. Baird, "that it was at the request of the family and her attorneys that I called on Miss Julia Force, for the purpose of making an examination and to form an opinion of the condition of her mind. She told me that she had been badly treated, that by killing her sisters and the public trial that would follow, she would visit the greatest possible humiliation man the family.

"I asked her why dida't she kill herself, and her reply was that she had decided to kill herself, and that she hid a pistol for that purpose, but when she went to get it it was gone. She said that on reflection she decided that she wouldn't take her own life, because it would not bring out the facts that she wanted to get before the public.

"I could have carried out my purpose,' she told me, 'when mother was present, but I dreaded to hear her scream. I got the servants out of the way, took off my hat and put on an apron. I then got my pistol, holding it beneath the apron m one hand, and in the other I held the High note. I first shot Sister Minnie, and then locked the door. I thought that if one was removed the other must be also. Sister Elorence was standing by the hearth when I entered the room, and she said to me, 'get out. I don't want you in here, Julia.' I was glad she said it, as it nerved me for the killing." I asked her why she used a pistol, and I could have carried out my purpose,

"I asked her why she used a pistol, and her reply was that it was the most certain; that she had first thought of chloroform, but was afraid it wouldn't work; she thought that she might be able to make away with one of them with chloroform, but not with both.

"From my examination, I would say that she is undoubtedly insane."

At the conclusion of Dr. Baird's testimony, court took a récess until 2 o'clock. The jurors were allowed to separate, by consent of counsel for both sides, after being cautioned by the judge as to their duty while out of the courtroom. The Afternoon Session of Court.

The Afternoon Session of Court.

The afternoon session was called to order at 2 o'clock, and the first witness was Dr. J. B. Baird, who requested to be allowed to return to the stand for a few minutes.

"I wanted to state," said the doctor, "that I asked Miss Force if she dreaded any future punishment in the great hereafter for her crime. Her reply was that God had forsaken her."

Miss Julia Force's Mother.

Miss Julia Force's Mother.

The next witness was Mrs. Julia A. Force, the mother of the two murdered girls and of Miss Julia Force.

"Julia's conduct," said Mrs. Force, "has been very strange and incomprehensible for several months past. On the 16th of October, I noticed a decided change. She came into my room and asked me if I had been to church. I replied that I had, and she asked me to tell her what the sermon was about. I told her that I could not remember it all, but that I would give her a synopsis of it, which I did. She then asked me if I had read a book called 'Hell,' I told her that I had not I noticed at the same time a strange look in her eyes. I started to leave the room, fearing for my personal safety.

my personal safety.

"But she wouldn't let me, slamming the door with her foot. I then called for Allie, who was out on the front porch, but he could not hear me, as the door was closed. I then started to leave the room by another door, but she blocked my way, and caught me around the waist and threw me against a table and over two chairs. I screamed, and this must have brought her to her senses, for she let up and left the room. "She used to complain that I was partial to the others, but if anything, I was partial to her, she being the eldest. "One day George came to me and said that he and Allie had been considering for Julia. I told them not to do so. She wouldn't take her meals with the family. Lately, before the killing, she suddenly started to use harsh language."

The Testimony of Mrs. Spence

Mrs. Spencer testified that she knew Miss Julia Force and that she had seen her the morning of the killing. That she was much excited. That she thought Miss Julia much excited. That she thought Miss Julia was going to hurt herself. She showed me the High letter.

Mrs. Eliza Whitner testified that she had seen Miss Julia the morning of the killing, and tried to quiet her. Knew some dreadful change had taken place. She showed Mrs. Whitner the High letter. Major Whitner and Mrs. Whitner testified along the same line.

Whitner and Mrs. Whitner testined along the same line.

"She asked me to go to Dr. Strickler's," said Major Whitner, "and tell him to call on her brothers on account of the condition of their souls, as it was time they should prepare for death. The time was when God was absent from the soul. She said that God had been absent from her soul."

Mr. Allie W. Force's Testimony. Mr. Allie W. Force's Testimony.

The testimony of Mr. Allie Force was the same as that of his mother, and the only new feature was the fact that Miss Julia had tried to get his pistol, saying that she would kill herself. He said that one day she jumped at Miss Florence, and that when he caught hold of her she damned the all and hoped that they would go to hell. He told about the High letter also.

Mr. G. H. Force testified on the same line; and Mrs. Sarah Conley testified that she thought Miss Julia was insane. Bishop Cleland Kinlock Nelson.

Bishop Cleland Kinlock Nelson.

Bishop Nelson was the last witness and testified for the defense.

"I met Miss Force once," said he, about ten days after the killing. My knowledge of Miss Force before the event was very slight. I was introduced to her by the bishop of Alabama, who told me that she, was an especially valuable worker. You can imagine my feeling when I read of the event in the Columbus papers. I went to see her in company with Mrs. Rosa Wright, her friend. I spoke to her kindly, and decided that the first thing was to investigate her feelings. She was so reand decided that the first thing was to investigate her feelings. She was so repentant that I was fully persuaded that she was beginning to see the heinousness of her crime. It took me about four or five minutes to decide that this action was the result of a disordered mind. From manhood I have made a study of metaphysics. In a few minutes I decided she was a monovening. omaniac."

KELLY'S BLACK BIRDS

The Man from Mobile with His Baseball Team Took the Town by Storm.

BUT THAT JACK LOST THE GAME

Pete Daniels, the Dark-Haired Pitcher, Who Has a Change of Pace, Appears to Have Lost His Cunning Delivery.

When Jack Kelly-he of the Mobile baseball team—came to Atlanta last he was followed by an aggregation of baseball players clad in the blackest of the black uniform Atlanta public yesterday leading a company of star tall plyers, but when these same stars marched upon the field at Brisbine park, in the afternoon, led by the only Pete Daniels, the audience was surprised to find all clad in white.

the audience was surprised to find all clad in white.

The change in the unforms of the Mobile team led many te believe that Kelly now wants 1 is men to be angels.

The crowd which greeted the game was over a thousand strong. The smoker was well crowded, while the grand stand contained an unusuality large number of ladies. It was the brachers alone which wore a sad air.

The game started off with the only Pete and his change of pace—a slow ball and another a little slower—in the box. Pete started the game by giving kly a hit and kly went to account when Pete presented Duffee with a Lase. Lutenberg's error at drst gave Motz a life, and the bases were full. Then Connor came along and picking out one of Pete's slow ones found it for two bags. That scored kly, Duffee and Motz. Newman was given his first through Pete's generosity and Camp found a single. This, with Murphy's sacriace and bewald's single, let Connor and Newman cross the plate.

Five runs for Atlanta in the first made for all stepped into the box for Atlanta, while Darby weat into right field, Camp covering center in Murray's absence. Mills, the heavy hitter of the Mobile team, was the first man to face Dewald, but like his two companions who followed, was unable to solve the left-handed man's curves and the sile went out without a hit.

Atlanta could do nothing in the second and third. Neither could Mobile. In the fourth, singles by Murphy, Darby, Duffee and Motz, with sacrifices by Dewald, Ely and Connor, gave Atlanta three more curs.

In that inning Holland got a triple off De In that inning Holland got a triple off Dewald which was the first hit of the game, registered against him. But the hit amounted to nothing as two men had gone out before and the next man followed sult.

A base on balls by Camp and a stolen base by him, aided by Murphy's single and Dewald's sacrifice, gave Atlanta another in the fifth. Mobile could do nothing in that inning.

A presentation of bases to buffee and Motz, with Connor's sacrifice, gave Atlanta another in the sixth. Gettinger got a single in this inning, but that was all.

in the sixth. Gettinger got a single in this inning, but that was all. Murphy's double in the seventh, Connor's single in the eighth and Camp's single in the ninth, make the history of the game for Atlanta complete, while 'Trost's single in the seventh and another one like it in the ninth, tell the story fully for Mobile.

The Atlantas played with a vim and a snap which they have not shown this season. Murray's coaching was a feature of the game. He stood upon the lines and worked from start to finish, apparently putting life into the men, which was irresistible. Devald's pitching was fine. It was in all probability one of the very best games which has been pitched in the Southern League this season.

Savannah defeated Birmingham in a very close and exciting game today by a score of six to three. Birmingham put up a good game in the field, but their inasility to hit Quaries lost them the game. Hoover made a great one-hand catch of a line hit from Burns's but in the second inning of what looked good for three bases, retiring the side with two men on bases. Nicholl also made a fine running catch of a liner from Mies's bat in the first inning. Both pitchers did fine work, while Connaughton and Earle put up a great game behind the bat. Savannah took the lead in the first, scoring four runs, which the visitors were unable to overcone. The features of the game, were the batting of Joanes, Burns and George and the fielding of McGarr and Klussman. Attendance twenty-two hundred. Score by innings:

Chattanooga 6, New Orleans 3.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 26.-(Special,)-The Chattanooga ball club had a compara-tively easy time defeating the New Orleans team this afternoon. Balley, who last year was such a stumbling block to the local team in its attempts for victory, was batted hard, and only stupid base running by the local players prevented the score for Chattanooga reaching way up into the teens. The game was a beautiful exhibition of ball playing and entertaining to a high point fully one thousand people who were present.

won fifteen consecutive games, and was on its way to jump into the seat on the bandwagon now occupied by Augusta when the Memphlans came down like a wolf in the fold and relegated the victorious Sea Gulla a step to the rear. It took two pifchers eleven innings to do it, and in addition an unlucky error by Charleston's catcher. Sugden. Wadsworth was put up by the visitors and Cross by the locals. For five innings it was plain sailing. The locals had put up six runs and no Memphlans had as yet reached the home plate. Then Wittrock, the star pitcher of the western circuit, was put up and the Memphian fireworks began. The mishap occurred in the eighth when Memphis had the bases full and Sugden passed a ball, which found its way to the bleachers. A small boy picked it up and tossed it on the diamond, and the three runs came in. The winning run was made in the eleventh inning. Following is the score: Charleston. . 10131001000-7. The Citizens of Atlanta and Elsewhere Contributing to the Hospital Library.

Since the announcement in Sunday's Constitution was made to the public asking that a library be established at the Grady hospital for its unfortunate inmates, the contributions have been steadily coming in today, and at 6 o'clock last night several very nice books had been sent to the physician in charge, besides an innumerable amount of old papers and other reading matter. In this way it will not require any great length of time to compile an interesting library at Atlanta's hospital. Everything which is received will be distributed where the most good will be done.

done. The people need not hesitate as to what kind of reading matter they send to the hospital, anything will be thankfully received. This is an appeal that should not go unheeded, and the good citizens of Atlanta and vicinity will no doubt respond with that generosity which has always characterized her people.

STRUCK HER IN THE EYE.

While some painters were working on the Broad street side of the Fitten building yesterday a wire was broken, and failing to the ground struck Minnie Brady, a colored woman, over the right eye. The woman was carried to the office of Dr. Glass in the Fitten building where the wound was dressed and was subsequently moved to her home on Dorr street.

Hubbard. Price & Co.'s Circular.

MEW YORK, June 28—Liverpool cablegrams state that the impression is among the trade that the report of the India silver commission will recommend the closing of the India mines and the adoption of a rate of exchange upon India fixed at 1s 4d per rupee. There sables also state that a good business is doing in Manhester, and anticipate a continuance of the spot demand for cotton for some time to come. A decline in silver to 3d in London today—the lowest quotations ever known—has excited some anxiety regarding the fature of Manchester trade with silver countries, as the adoption of the report of the India commission on the basis as stated above would practically put India on a gold basis; and, while working to the benefit of India, would work to the injury of the other silver countries. Our market failed to respond to the sale in Liverpool of 10,000 bales, at an advance of 263-5 id in the arrival market except during the first hour business, and since that thus the Liverpool of 10,000 bales, at an advance of 2@3-8 id in the arrival market except during the first hour business, and since that time the pressure of cotton from the south which is being sent to this market for delivery as the quickest available means of procuring cash advances has caused prices to weaken, and the market after advancing a points from Saturday's quotations, has seelined until it is now selling at 3@4 points below the prices existing on Saturday. The amount of cotton in New York at this season of the year is remarkable. As usual the cotton that is held up to the list of July is carried over into the new crop by the southern banks, but evidently the pressure for money is becoming as seriously felt in the south as in the other sections of the country, and foreing a liquidation of the holdings of cotton. Crop advices are rather of a more favorable tenor. Coincident with the improvement in the weather, though, the crop can be considered as indicating only a fair yield of cotton, and not an extra one at the present time. At the moment, however, the price of sotton is governed by the condition of affairs financially, and not by crop or trade reports, and unline Manchester shows a bold front it seems likely that the pressure of cotton in America upon Liverpool, where it must eventually fall, may cause a slightly further deciline in prices. Locally opinions are very much mired, the conflicting factors being more difficult of solution than for many years, and merchants appear to be pursuing a conservative course and refraining from taking an active stand in the market. In the closing hour of business the same tacsics which were noticeable Saturday were put in operation today, and prices were advanced some life points, the closing of the market being called very steady under the influence of the buying, which is said to be for account of a Liverpool house which is interested in disposing of the large stock of cotton from the interior to this market, on account of the stringency of money, were current this afternoon, and have apparently had more than a basis of truth behind them. The latest dispatches indicate that the Indian banks have closed against the coinage of silver except for account of the government. How far this will affect the other silver producing countries is a question which Manchester will be obliged to decide, as payment for a large quantity of the goods bought in that market is made in silver.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Circular.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Circular. NEW YORK, June 24-[Special.]—Liverpool today NEW YORK, June 28—[Special.]—Liverpool today sent us a better report, but it created no enthusiasm among the buils; and, although our opening was 2g/3 points higher, and August sold soon after the opening 7.85, the improvement was short-lived, and in the face of free offerings prices gradually gave way until August had sold at 7.76. There was covering of shorts in the last 15 minutes, causing the market to close very steady with 7.79 bid for August. The pinch in money was very severe today, and there was a sharp decline in silver, both of which causes affected cotton unfa vorably. The crop news was better than it has been, and the indications now are that, with the present financial outlook, it will require a further and substantial improvement in Liverpool to sustain prices here.

MEW YORK, June 28-Liverpool reported today a. steady market at 2 points advance. Spot sales 10,000 bales. We opened at an advance of 4@5 points on favorable Liverpool and large spot sales there. Later oa stringency in money and lack of outside support caused a decline of 6 points, ruling all day at these figures with but very little doing. Trade continues entitlely local. Crop reports are separately builtab, and entirely local. Crop reports are generally bullish, and the situation looks healthy in every respect, but with he present condition of the money market speculato re not inclined to buy.

THE CHICAGO MARKET

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.
CHICAGO, June 26.—Crop damage to spring CHICAGO, June 26.—Crop damage to spring wheat rose superior today to 55 per cent money in New 15rs and a demoralized sliver market. There was a strong tone to all the board of trade markets at the close. Compared with last night wheat is up 1 3-8c and corn 1 3-4c. in wheat the opening was about 1-8c higher than Saturday's crossing, and with a few mictuations prices were advanced 1 3-8g 1 5-8c, then eased off slightly and the closing was about 1 3-8c higher for July and 1 5-8c higher for September than the crossing noticed that there was some disposition to buy July wheat and sell for September and the general tendency and drift of the market induced shorts to cover. There were reports of hot winds in the northwest doing a damage to the crop and in some parts the spring wheat crop was reported as looking very bad. The tight money market in the east, the break there in stocks and a reported failure in Minneapolis seemed to have little or no effect. Corn opened strong, about the final quotations of yesterday, and under good demand, some of which were for outside account and limited offerings gradually worked up 7-8a1c, the action of wheat helping the advance. The local crowd bought freely, but at 41 1-2 at 2-4 some of the larger concerns commenced to sell, and room operators being long, also sold in turn, resulting in a break of 1-2a5-8c. The market afterwards ruled steady and at the close had gained 5-8a3-4c. There was very little news received that was in any way influential and prices were governed largely by the action of local tracers.

There was a moderate trade in oats with prices following wheat and corn. Prices covered a 1-2c range and advanced 1-2a3-4c over Saturday's closing, but reacted 3-8a1-2c and finished with a gain of 1-8a1-4c.

The receipts of hogs were 38,000 head, instead of 25,000 estimated on Saturday. As a result provisions were weak, but toward the close the bull clique bid for some lard and ribs, which caused the most of the early 21-2a 15c loss to be recovered from. There were a couple of transactions in pork, closing charge is back again to $1 per barrel.

CHICAGO, June 26.—The decrease of over 3,000,000 bushels in the visible supply and the reported hot winds in the northwest have been the principal factors in advancing wheat today. There was quite a fair export business from New York and Boston. The spread between July and September is now only about 4 3-8c, with quite a good deal of changing being done. The New York money market is tighter today, owing probably to the expected contraction of the drain of currency to interlor points. There was about one-half wheat receipts in Minneapolis and Duluth as there were the same day last year. Wheat has been fairly active today, closing 1 1-2c above the closing of Saturday. The decrease of 2,000,000 bushels on passage is also noted. It is evident that England is taking our bankrupt stock of wheat as fast as she can secure ocean freight. We believe this a golden opportunity for investors who have shown their appreciation of the situation by their liberal buying today.

It is estimated there will not be more than 1,000,000 bushels contract corn in store here tomorrow. Oats and corn opped fairly steady with a visible advance in the latter.

Great surprise was occasioned this morning upon the receipt of 38,000 hogs at the yards—12,000 over the estimate. Prices in consequence declined to 25c. Pork and lard also declined, while ribs closed at 10/412c above the opening, which was 7 1-2/415c below Saturday's closing.

AN ARMISTICE.

After a Hard Battle Over the Mayor's $3 Tax Veto

A POSTPONEMENT IS AGREED UPON.

A Sharp but Undecisive Struggle in Council Yesterday—It Was One of the Live-liest Struggles of Recent Years.

Down in the city council chamber, a place of calm and quiet scenes, there was fought a battle royal yesterday afternoon. Great was the battle, but when the smoke and noise of conflict had passed away not one of the heroes of yesterday was among the slain. Bruised and wounded they might have been, but living still, and brave.

In full battle array, their war paint on and their battle ery pitched to its highest key, the brave warriors of the city council went to battle over the mayor's veto of the $3 individual tax clause of the city tax ordinance. Hard as was the battle, it was not decisive. Each side claimed even honors when an armistice was declared

It does not often occur that such sharp battles are necessary to settle the fate of a measure in council. Only once in a very long while is there such fun and ex-The running of the Chicago derby the other day could not have been more exciting than was this contest of the councilmen at one critical point yesterday. which soon converted the popular scorn with which it was regarded into a tidal wave of every councilman on the floor had made his speech. One thing had shown itself in the long debate; it was evident to all that the vote would be close. To the council-men it appeared that the advocates of the e-doffar tax had won. Mayor Pro Tem. Shropshire was in the chair. Mayor Pro Tem. Shropshire was in favor of the three-lollar tax. In the most persausive tones, he asked:

"Will Alderman Rice come to the chair

Innocently, Mr. Rice went to the chair. Mr. Rice went to the chair. Mr. Rice was in favor of $I'tax. He had been trapped! Even his astute eye did not see it until it was too late. And Mr. Mayor Pro Tem. Shropshire called for the distribution.

Mayor. Pro Tem. Shropshire called for the question.

Mr. Stockdell, who wants his fellow citizens to pay $1 tax, arose. He moved that the mayor pro tem. take his seat. The mayor pro tem. said his seat was supplied. Mr. Stockdell read some law; he said it was the duty of the mayor pro tem. to preside at all meetings of council; he was present, there was no reason why he should not preside. It was law; it was right. The three-dollar-tax men were chuckling gleefully in the sleeves of their negligee shirts. Mayor Pro Tem. Shropshire looked like a victorious man; Mr. Rice looked pale.

looked pale.

The one-dollar-tax men realized that unless Mr. Rice could be get from the chair and a three-dollar-tax man put in his place, the veto of the mayor would not be sustained. In other words, Mr. Shropshire would win a victory for his side, which, without his little play, would not have been possible. There was no way to get out of it, it seemed. Clearly Mr. Shropshire had a wight to ask a man to take the chair. a right to ask a man to take the chair, and clearly no one could make him come back to it before he chose to do so.
"I will rule that Mr. Shropshire is right," said Mr. Rice, a happy idea striking him, "and I will ask Mr. Northen to come to the chair."

"and I will ask Mr. Northen to come to the chair."

"And I refuse to come," answered Mr. Northen, who is a three-dollur-tax man, with great promptness. There were glowing countenances among the three-dollar-tax men. Victory seemed theirs. But Mr. Rice was not to be betten so easily. There was nobody nor no law to hinder him from getting out of the chair, and he got with celerity. Like a flash, he left the stand and took his seat on the floor.

Council was without a presiding officer! Mr. Shropshire, who a moment before had been sixting victoriously in Mr. Rice's seat, now arose, looked around and looked.

seat, now arose, locked around and looked pale. John Colvin, a leading three-dolar-tax man, was sending great big guffaws down his sleeves. Mr. Rice looked like a hero and a conqueror.

Mr. Northen then moved to adjourn, and

Mr. Northeat they moved to adjourn, and so quick that it paralyzed him the one-dollar-tax men yelled "aye." He withdrew the rotion with great haste, after it had been carried. Then there was a momentary pause. Each side seemed to be waiting for the other to move. Mr. Hill waiting for the other to move. Mr. Hill stepped into the breach with a motion to adjourn until next Saturday. The ayes and nays were called. Every man voted for adjournment save Mr. Colvin. He stood great emphasis, "that I have enough backbone to vote against this thing—this scheme."

Mr. Shropshire did not proclaim council adjourned, but started to attend to some other business to which the attention of the body had been cafiled by a communication from the mayor. He said it was very important. The one-dollar-tax men left the hall. "You adjourned; left it stay," they called back.

The Debate

The Debate

The debate was very long, consuming two hours. As soon as the mayor's veto was read, two or three minor changes were made. The tax on telegraph companies was made $100; on wholesale dealers in beer, liquors and wine, $50, instead of $100, and on pawnbrokers who deal in pistols, $200.

Mr. Hill was the first to speak on the pistols, $200.

Mr. Hill was the first to speak on the mayor's veto. He favored the three-dollar of the city government and the maintemance of streets.

"I am going to vote for this $3 tax if nobody else does." said Mr. Haralson. "I care nothing for the newspaper nor the rabble about town who oppose it, I'm going to vote for it because I think its right. Talk about office. I don't want any more office."
Mr. Haralson's designation of a certain class of the opposition as rabble proved a very unfortunate one. Several speakers who followed him made capital out of it.
Mr. Stockdell made a remarkably business like and sensible talk in favor of the $1 tax. He said every man he had seen favored it. Men who paid big taxes had asked him to vote for it, and not one of Mr. Haralson's rabble had been to him him about it. He had found a sentiment that there be no tax at all.

"If you had this additional $12,000 you'd spend it," said he. "You put it in the contingent fund and every one of you would introduce resolutions to get rid of it. It's wrong, unbusiness like and unnecessary."
He said the newspapers were voicing public sentiment in the matter.

Mr. Colvin made a great hit. He said showing is a good one.

The bank was started about a year and a half ago, and on a capital paid in monthly installments, a net profit of $4.197.63 has been realized.

paid in monthly installments, a net profit of $4,197.63 has been realized.

This is a net earning of 10 per cent a year, and the statement is made that not a single bad debt appears on the books. The showing is one that is gratifying to the stockholders, as it sets aside all doubt as to the prosperity of the bank, and shows that the stock is worth $104 for every $100 invested.

Under the efficient management of President John M. Green and the able board of directors associated with him, this happy result has been achieved. The directors of the bank to whom credit in a large measure is due are Messrs. W. A. Gregg, J. G. Oglesby, A. L. Kontz, C. S. Kingsberry, Joel Hurt, J. C. Kirkpatrick, J. F. Gatins, J. D. Turner, C. I. Branan, C. D. Montgomery, D. O. Dougherty, J. C. Johnson and Joseph Hirsch

These gentlemen have devoted their time and business talent to the work without desiring or receiving one cent of pay.

Mr. Anton Kontz, who was the original organizer of the bank, and who has ever since been identified with its management, deserves, special credit for his shrewd business tact and sagacity.

holders, showing what had been done up to this time. In accordance therewith I beg to give you the following information:

Up to June 1st nineteen installments were due, and $50,112 had been paid thereon. The interest and discount, earned and unearned, received during the nineteen months amounted to $7,698,63, against which expenses were incurred amounting to $3,501, leaving a not balance of $4,197,63, which is equivalent to a return of a little over 10 per cent per annum on the average use of $25,056 for fhe nineteen months.

Since the 1st of June a number of subscribers, including the East Atlanta Land Company, have made good their subscriptions to The capital stock, which now stands at $300,000, fully subscribed, and collections have been made up to June 20th, increasing the net resources of the bank to $111,776,23, all of which are believed to be perfectly good. No losses have been made on loans or investments, and on the showing made the stock should be worth at least $104 on each $100 paid in.

rooster keeps sentinel and marches in dignified pomp from one end of the grounds to the other.

Piled up in this room, which revives the musty scent of Dickens's "Old Curiosity Shop," is an odd medley of things in general.

Everything from a sausage grinder to a hatrack is piled up in a mass, the sight of which is at first bewildering. Chairs, bedsteads, broken pitchers, baby carriages, books, sideboards, washstands, coffee pots, tea kettles, preserves, hardware and everything that is ordinarily found on a long insurance policy.

This quaint and curious assortment of relies is the result of gradual accumulation. It represents the distress and sorrow of many a household, the visit of the balliff to the home, the inability of the husband to pay, the driving up of a wagon in front of the door and then the hauling out of the family luggage, sacred from the mellow influence of association, but which the officer fails, in his discharge of duty, which steels him against sympathy or feeling, to measure or comprehend.

If the old bedstead, on which perhaps a member of the family passed away, or the table, around which a happy household one gathered, could only speak, they night tell table that would interest. But this is left for the fancy to follow up.

Across the hallway frem Judge Manning's courtroom is the headquarters of the Christian Scientists. The judge is pleased with his surroundlings and was never more agreeably situated since donning the emine, which he has always worn with sign grace and ability. IT WILL BE RESOLD. The Westmoreland Property on Marietta Street, Next to the Custom House.

On the second Tuesday in August the Westmoreland property, next to the federal building, will be placed on the market.

It will be remembered that the property was purchased by Mr. Hugh Inman last fall. The heirs interfered with the sale, however, and the matter was never consummated. It was taken into court and yesterday a, consent order was given, the issue having been settled, providing for its sale the second time next month.

APPOINTED A RECEIVER.

The DeLoach Mill Manufacturing Com-pany in the Hands of the Court, An application was filed yesterday morning in the clerk's office, placing the DeLoach Mill Manufacturing Company in the hands of a receiver.

The creditors applying for the pet'tion were W. J. Hogan, $24.37; M. M. Manck, $144.26; Beck & Gregg, $722.50; A. M. Hollingsworth. $61.12 and two or three others. The plant has been shut down for several weeks. Mr. Charles G. Leippold was named by Judge Glarke as the receiver in behalf of the creditors. A GOOD SHOWING.

tax, and made a strong speech in favor of it. He said it was something like reasonable compensation for the many benefits the citizen received from the city. He talked about country people having to work the roads, and said that he had worked the roads in the country and worked hard, too. He had plowed and hoed and picked on country roads and he didn't think it fair for country people to have to do this and city people pay only $1 and enjoy vastly better privileges. He adjured councilmen to leave questions of expediency and of what might be popular and look at the question in a business light.

Mr. Reneau answered Mr. Hill about city people paying only $1 tax,by saying that they paid $15 per thousand more tax than country people, which went to the support of the city government and the maintenance of streets.

STATEMENT OF CASHIER BLOODWORTH.

Capital Stock Raised to $300,000 by East Atlanta Land Company-Mr. John

The stockholders of the Commercial Travelers' Savings bank, of this city, have received a circular letter from the cashier, Mr. Litt Bloodworth, which gives a full statement of the bank's condition, and the showing is a good one.

Mr. Colvin made a great hit. He said he had a conscience, although some people said he did not have it in matters of polities. He had conscience in this matter, however. He did not believe the three-dollar tax necessary or right. He was there to represent his people and he believed he was doing it.

Mr. Beatie made a little talk in favor of $3. He said that worthless citizens who would not work and who were no good to the community, lazy whelps and vagabonds, the community, lazy whelps and vagabonds, who would kick at paying any sort of tax ought to be in the penitentiary. Mr. Reneau asked if he meant all men who were not able to pay the tax ought to be in the penitentiary. Mr. Beatie lost his temper. "Sit down, sit down," he said, "be ashamed of yourself, be ashamed of yourself. You know, I never said any such thing. I've been poor myself, I remember a time when I did not have but S5 cents in the world."

Mr. Shropshire and Mr. Northen made short talks favoring S2 Mr. Hill said he

The Location of the Coming Chantauqua

WHICH WILL OPEN NEXT MONDAY

About the Attractions on the Opening Day-The Outlook Encouraging.

The chautauqua assembly, which opens next Monday, will have a big advantage over its predecessors in this section in one respect, at least. It will not prove necessary for residents of Atlanta to travel eighteen or twenty miles on a hot summer's day through dust and not without fatigue, to attend the exercises. The sessions will be held here in the big tent on Jackson street, which is being erected and which can ensily be reached by three car lines. A cool delightful ride of a few minutes, or a pleasant evening's walk—and there you are.

This advantage those at the head of the enterprise have been endeavoring to im-enterprise have been endeavoring to impress upon prospective patrons. They believe that the former inconvenience of location has seriously interfered with the attendance, and have taken the necessary tendance, and have taken the necessary steps to obviate it.

When the big tent is thrown open next Monday evening the occasion will be a splendid one. The assembly will be begun with a grand concert by the big chorus of a thousand local voices now being trained by Professor Davis. They will be assisted by Madame Marie Decca, of New York, and other soloists. The music, airs popular with every one, promises to be of an inspiring nature. spiring nature.

Tuesday, the glorious fourth, the first lecture will be delivered. It will be by Colonel L. F. Copeland, upon "The Future of the Republic." The press of the country has been unanimous in its opinion of his ability as a speaker. He is a Pennsylvanian who has everywhere charmed his audiences, at times most critical ones. Like the speakers to follow him, he occupies no ordinary ers to follow him, he occupies no ordinary position upon the American rostrum.

During the afternoon another popular concert will be given, and at night Professor C. E. Bolton will give the first of a series of illustrated lectures. "Paris, the French Republic," will be his initial subject. The stereoptican views are said to be very fine. The entertainment—for it is certainly such—will conclude the opening day's session. During the remaining days of the assembly the programme will be considerably more elaborate. Each day's exercises will be opened with the Bible normal class, to be conducted by Dr. W. M. Baskerville, the well-known occupant of the Baskerville, the well-known occupant of the chair of English literature at Vanderbilt university.

Those who have attended the chautauqua at Salt Springs in recent years know what a delightful interest was afforded by its varied day's programme. There will be a pleasing repetition under the big tent next week and the week following, with this difference, the faces of those who will be a charge will be new and the attractions more numerous.
